CAPITOL NEWS

(Compiled by Nebraska Press Association)
LINCOLN—Nebraska's political fever was down a few points this week after reaching a seasonal high during last Tuesday's pre-primary conventions in Omaha. Another upsurge is likely in the days preceding Aug. 8 when Cornhusker voters will go to the polls for the 1950 primary election.

Both parties at Omaha attacked the law under which they met—the much-amended pre-primary law. The Republicans nailed a plank into their platform calling for its overhauling and while the democrats didn't go on the record as a party they were almost unanimous that there wasn't much good in the law. People who disagree with this position could point to the fact that in only one republican and in two democratic races were more than one contender endorsed. The republicans refused endorsement to eight men while the democrats spurned three. Know-it-alls had said before the convention "Everybody'll be endorsed." No one could deny that some undesirable candidates had been eliminated by the process. Here are the candidates endorsed by the two parties:

REPUBLICAN
Governor: Val Peterson.
Lieut. Governor: Charles Warner.
Sec. of State: Frank Marsh.
Treasurer: Frank Heinze.
Auditor: Ray C. Johnson.
Att. General: Clarence S. Beck.
Railway Commissioner: John Knickrehm and Harold Palmer.
First Congressional District: Carl Curtis.
Second: Howard Buffett.
Third: Karl Stefan.
Fourth: A. L. Miller.

DEMOCRAT
Governor: Walter Raecke and Frank Morrison.
Lieut. Governor: Ed Dosek.
Att. General: Michael McLaughlin.
Secretary of State: Foster May.
Auditor: George D. Richardson.
Treasurer: William T. Thompson.
Railway Commissioner: J. C. Slater and J. C. McReynolds.
First District Congress: Clarence G. Miles.
Second: Eugene D. O'Sullivan.

of $53,000,000 on damage to land, agricultural establishments and county road systems in the May 8 floods in southeastern Nebraska. A. E. McClumonds, Lincoln, regional director for the SOS, said the total does not include damage to industrial, municipal, and urban property, state and federal highway systems, railroads and communications systems, or reservoirs. Ninety percent of the loss was on bottomland farms, the report showed.

GOV. VAL PETERSON this week is attending the National Governors Conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. But before he left he tossed a one-two punch at the democrats. He led with a jab at "some" democrats who "have been caught with gambling jam on on their faces." He slapped Demo. State Chairman Clayton Shroff suggesting the democrats could win this year because of resentment to the gambling crackdown launched last fall by Republican Attorney General James H. Anderson.

Then the governor followed with a poke at democratic criticism of high taxes in Nebraska. "It's a matter of public record," said the governor, that this administration holds the national championship for low taxes. Nebraska last year had the lowest per capita tax rate in the nation.

THE LONG DRAWN OUT argument whether the Burlington railroad should be allowed to curtail service on its Lincoln-Table Rock-Wyoming line is going to be longer and more drawn out. Protestants to cutting the service, principally the League of Nebraska Municipalities, were given by the state railway commission until July 1 to file briefs to support their contention that the application should be denied.

The Burlington says it's losing $100,000 a year on the routes and the League says that if the application is granted the railroad may eventually remove all service on the line. REGULATION AND TAXATION of one of Nebraska's newest industries—oil and gas—was discussed at a meeting here of the legislative council's committee on the subject. Research Director Roger Shumate said testimony, including that of oil company representatives, indicated some type of conservation legislation may be required. They also agree, he said, that some state agency should administer the program.

QUOTES FROM THE STATEHOUSE BEAT:
Fred Klietsch, state engineer: "Nebraska motorists last month traveled 209,000 more miles daily on rural roads than in May, 1949. This year's figure was 8,691,000 compared to 8,482,000 a year ago. Daily travel is up 15 percent over last year."
Dr. Frank D. Ryder, state health director: "All federal funds now available for construction of hospitals in Nebraska have been allocated. Communities desiring to apply for federal funds may do so after congress appropriates funds for next year."
Donald P. Miller, state labor commissioner: "Nebraska's labor picture brightened last month with a seasonal increase in the jobs available. There was a 21 percent drop from the previous month in the number of registered jobless."

Camps Still Popular
LACONIA, N. H. (UP)—New Hampshire, where the nation's first summer camp was established in 1882 attracted 16,000 youngsters to its various summer camps this season, according to the New Hampshire Health News. The publication said Camp Chocorua on Squam Lake was the first summer camp in America.
