

Senator W. A. Metzger on Road Planning

Senator W. A. Metzger of Cedar Creek, a member of a special legislative committee that is studying county government, is quoted in a very interesting article by Harold Anderson in the Sunday World-Journal. The senator states that he is not blaming members of the various county boards over the state for road conditions but rather the fact that there is not enough careful and definite planning by qualified directors and engineers.

"I don't mean to slap at the county board members," he said. "I blame the system. The whole problem is lack of planning."

Senator Metzger's remarks tally with what some other persons familiar with Nebraska over-all road problems are saying about county and township road spending.

These observers say the best opportunity to get more for road money in Nebraska lies in providing for planning and engineering for county roads and tighter supervision of expenditures of county road funds.

State Department of Roads and Irrigation figures show that in 1949 Nebraska counties and townships spent $16,400,813 in road and bridge money.

That same year the State Highway Department got $16,703,191.

Critics of the present system say that these millions of dollars in county and township road funds are spent in most counties by county board members or township officers who may have no expert knowledge of road and bridge problems.

In many Nebraska counties under the commissioner system, county road and bridge funds are divided among the county commissioners. Each commissioner then spends his allotment in his district.

He can be "king" in his district. There is no requirement for unified attack on all the county's road and bridge needs.

Senator Metzger says this system can lead to duplication of equipment, among other things.

In one Eastern Nebraska county, each of the three commissioners has two bulldozers in his "kingdom."

In some 25 counties having the township system, there may be both county and township road systems and funds.

Thus, in one relatively small area, you may find township taxes being spent by township officers on a township road system and county funds being spent by county officers on a county road system.

Preparing for Primaries
The office of County Clerk George R. Sayles is a very busy place in the last few days with the preparation for the primary election on Tuesday, August 8th now on in full swing.

The listing and notification of the judges and clerks of election is not a small task, James Hall, veteran election expert, is on the job in getting the notifications sent out to members of the various boards. A number will have both receiving and counting boards in larger precincts and wards of the county.

Another of the tasks is that of getting the delegates to the county convention for the next year lined up. These lists are sent in by the committeemen and women or by individual filings.

Omaha Youths Charged With Grand Larceny

Three Omaha youths, Frank Pesek, 15, Herbert Honey, 16, and Robert Beckwith, 20, admitted in a signed statement to Sheriff Solomon Wednesday that they were the ones that broke into and robbed two autos Friday night at a local beach and four autos Saturday night. Owners of the six autos were picknicking at the time of the theft. Sheriff Solomon estimated damages to the autos and articles taken to be around $200.00. Almost all the stolen articles were recovered by Sheriff Solomon.

The youths barely missed being caught by Sheriff Solomon and employees at the beach after they pulled the Saturday night thefts. Two of the boys managed to get a ride in a passing auto and the other youth hid all night in the rain soaked weeds.

These have been the only two thefts which occurred this year at the beach along the Platte, according to the sheriff's office. Pesek and Honey are being held in the local county jail and Beckwith is being held by Omaha police on charges of joyriding.

This morning (Thursday) a complaint was filed by County Attorney Walter Smith charging Pesek and Honey with grand larceny. All three youths have previous records.

Report Boat As Missing Monday

John Grebe, one of the local fishermen residing on the banks of the Missouri river near the Burlington bridge, reports that his fishing boat that was left tied up near the residence, is missing.

The log to which the boat was anchored is also missing. Whether the boat floated off by the high water, or was stolen is a question. The matter was reported to Sheriff Tom Solomon who is investigating the matter and trying to find a trace of the missing craft.

Signs Point to Near Approach Of Carnival

With less than two months elapsing before the next King Korn Carnival, the signs are getting more numerous that this big event is really getting underway.

One is that Dr. O. Sandin, veteran fireman and band leader, is getting a "Dutch Band" lined up. This is always a pleasant feature of Carnival time. This year will be no exception. Veteran musicians, who for many years have been band men, gather up the old horns and "Doc" his drum for the three days of the fall festival are right in there pitching. Dr. Sandin reports that he is lacking a trumpet and trombone player for the band. Any of the younger musicians that are desirous of joining in the band for the carnival should get in touch with the leader.

Another of the signs is the fact that Ed Kohrell, whose devices in carnival parades has been a hit for years, was seen taking a load of plywood home the other day. This means that something is doing on another of these entertaining features for the parades. Watch Ed.

Murdock Church Boosters Work For New Church

Residents of the Murdock community are still carrying on their campaign for the church building in that growing town. The church when it is completed will cost something like $80,000 and will be one of the finest buildings in the county.

Work for the church is one of the foremost thoughts of the residents of that community. Several months ago an auction sale was held to help on the campaign for funds.

Plans for the new Evangelical Ebenezer United Brethren church have attracted a great deal of attention from residents of that part of the county who are striving for the realization of the new church.

The dwelling formerly owned by Mrs. Margrath Rikli has been torn down and on the site the basement of the church is being dug by volunteer labor.

LOCATES IN CITY

Walter Goehenour, a resident of southeast Plattsmouth for many years, is now a resident of Plattsmouth. He has purchased a trailer as a home, located in the east part of the city near the Burlington station.

The petition of Fred Marquardt, Henry F. Dankleff and Henry P. Smith was heard authorizing the sale of real estate belonging to the church. Order to show cause was entered, hearing set for August 14, at 10 a. m., why lot 22 in the northwest quarter of section 31, township 10, north range 12, should not be disposed of by the church.

In the divorce action of Margaret Garrens vs. Roy Garrens, Order was given by the court restraining the defendant from interfering with or entering the premises occupied by the plaintiff and minor child.

In the case of O. K. Yardley vs. Cass County an appeal from vacation of road, hearing on plaintiff's petition set for hearing on August 1, at 10 a. m.

In the damage suit of Harry Barnes, a minor, by Thelma Barnes, his mother and next friend vs. Cass County Defendant was given fourteen days to answer or lead. Similar order was given in the two other actions for damages, result of an accident on the Cedar Creek road in May.

Local People Witness Ruin Of Tornado

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Larson of this city were at Lyons, Nebraska Sunday to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barkus, the latter formerly Matilda Larson.

They were on the scene following the tornado that swept a ten mile strip through the country south of Lyons, and able to witness a part of the destruction that was accomplished by the storm. The worst of the effects of the tornado was at Craig and Oakland, where damage running into thousands of dollars was inflicted on the community.

They followed the highway where the tornado had crossed and were able to observe much of the damage. Wires and poles were down in the area where the storm had visited, the wires torn from broken off poles, being rolled into bundles and tossed along the side of the roadway. Poles were snapped off trees torn out where the mighty wind storm had made its path.

They observed one cornfield that had been attractive and green before the storm where the stalks were cut off close to the ground, carried away from the scene.

After crossing this field the tornado had lifted over a hill, sweeping down with increasing fury. On one of the farms, barns, houses and stock was swept away by the force of the wind. Here the ground was strewn with cattle that had been killed by the force of the wind, being drawn up and then hurled to the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Larson when they drove up found members of the Legion and V. F. W. from nearby towns directing traffic, keeping the highway open. On their return there were workers on the highway soliciting funds for the afflicted area and finding a great response from the traveling public.

Historical Group Hears Fine Program

Wednesday noon the Cass County Historical society held a very fine meeting at the main dining room of the Edith Solomon restaurant in the Hotel Plattsmouth. The meeting followed the noonday luncheon.

Dr. G. H. Gilmore of Murray, president of the society, was present to preside over the meeting.

Reviews of many of the older communities of the county have served as the topic for interesting meetings in the past. This meeting taking the settlement of Cedar Creek as the subject. Heretofore the communities reviewed in the historical sketches have been among the pioneer towns in the southern portion of the county. This meeting had the settlement of one of the old towns along the Platte river.

The story of Cedar Creek and its settlement is largely one of the hardy German and Swiss people, who came here at an early day to make their home. As was the custom of the pioneers, the homes and farms were located along the water courses, the creeks and the rivers assuring a supply to the then young settlers.

C. E. Metzger, son of one of the earliest settlers, who has always retained his home and interest in this section of Cass county, was the guest speaker. He told of many incidents learned from his parents of the early day history of Cedar Creek. He told of the settlement by John Inhelder, perhaps the earliest settler in that locality, the coming of the speaker's parents Mr. and Mrs. Christian Metzger in 1861 to that locality, although the elder Metzger had settled near Plattsmouth in 1858. The years brought an increasing number from the old world to establish themselves in that fertile part of Cass county. The Jacob Schneider and Justus Lillie families came early to that part of Cass county, as did the family of George Waldrat.

It was in the seventies that members of the Meisinger family came west from their settlements in Illinois to locate all through that portion of Cass county. The seven Meisinger brothers were early settlers, today a large number of the farms in that section of Cass county are occupied by members of the Meisinger family.

Mr. Metzger recalled that one of the early day merchants of the village of Cedar Creek was George E. Sayles, father of County Clerk George Sayles, who operated a store for many years and also was engaged in the grain business.
