Navy Now Accepts New Enlistments

According to the Navy recruiter who is at the Plattsmouth post office each Monday afternoon, the Navy Recruiting Station at Fort Omaha announces that the Navy is now accepting applications for enlistment in unlimited numbers. LCDR J. W. Reed, officer-in-charge said that the Navy's training centers were quickly flooded with trainees after commencement of the Korean affair and it became impossible to accept all those qualified for enlistment. The Navy training centers have now been expanded sufficiently to train all those recruited thereby by permitting enlistments in the Navy on an unlimited basis. A young man may now expect to leave as soon as the enlistment process is completed.

It was stated that the qualifications for enlistment remain unchanged and that the ruling which has prohibited the enlistment of anyone in the Navy who has been called for his pre-induction physical still stands.
