CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN—The Nebraska legislature started its third week here Monday with a full schedule of committee hearings, eleven bills ready for second reading, and two of the most controversial measures of the young session started through the mill.

When the lawmakers adjourned for the week end, 116 measures had been introduced. This compared to 199 at the same point a year ago. The strange thing was that Bill Drafter Jack Wilson had received requests for, and had drafted, 336 bills. The question everyone here was asking was, "Why are the legislators sitting on those bills?"

There were any number of answers. One was that the members are feeling the pressure of a group led by Sen. Charles Tvrdek of Omaha, dean of the senate, for a minimum number of bills and for an early adjournment. Another suggestion is that strictness in the legislature hasn't quite "gelled" yet, and many of the legislators want to do some more pulse-taking before they throw in their pet projects.

The two controversial bills are those of Sen. Hugh Carson of Ord, which would put the state liquor control commission in the wholesale hard liquor business, with the revenue earmarked for highways, and a proposal by Senator Earl J. Lee of Fremont, C. C. Lillibridge of Crete and Otto Probs of Gering to restore the numerical prefixes on Nebraska vehicle license plates.

Carson won't flatly predict victory for his liquor proposal, other versions of which have flunked the committee test in the past several sessions. But he says, "This thing has never been pushed before and I'm going to push it."

Senator Lee, spokesman for the trio offered the license plate bill, said he had the support of 15 other senators who will go along with him and was on the prowl for more when the sessions started this week.

The Carson bill would make the three-man liquor commission "the sole wholesale distributor" of hard liquor. The Ord senator has released several statements attacking what he calls the Omaha liquor monopoly of eight wholesalers. He has also leveled criticism at the liquor lobby as an "evil and sinister thing."

The proposal would give the commission power to buy liquor "from such sources as it may deem desirable" and charge "such profit on resale as will defray the expense and such additional profit as may seem right and proper."

The measure calls for a half million dollar appropriation to set up a revolving fund which would launch the commission into the wholesale industry.

The squabble over license plate prefixes started last year when the Scottsbluff chamber of commerce learned the state highway department planned to add a letter as the last thing in the plate. "This would have enabled the motor vehicle division to make uniform size plates, because as soon as one serial of numbers was used up, the letter would be changed and the same set of figures could be used again."

Gene Haylett, secretary of the Scottsbluff chamber, proposed that if some juggling was to be done, Scotts Bluff county should get No. 3, instead of No. 21, because it had gained in population since the prefixes were first assigned.

The battle reached such proportions that the governor and State Engineer Fred H. Kliebsch stepped in and "solved" it by changing the prefixes to abbreviations of the county names.

Senator Lee said law enforcement officers, particularly had protested the change.

These were other developments of the legislative week: Four bills were offered hinging the salaries of elective officials and their deputies.

Sen. W. J. Williams withdrew his bills requiring loyalty oaths of teachers, college faculty members and public employees and substituted a bill requiring Communists to register with the secretary of state.

The budget committee spent the week end visiting Board of Control institutions at York, Grand Island, Kearney and Hastings. They earlier had toured the Orthopedic hospital here and the home for dependent children. This is all part of the get-acquainted process before submission of the Board's budget.

Change in Meat Grading System

The change in federal meat grading of beef has caused some confusion to the homemaker at the meat counters. Since the new beef grading system went into effect, meat purchasers have been confronted with the changes of the grading terms. Prof. Wm. J. Loeffel, chairman of the department of animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska in explaining the grade revision says it is essentially an upgrading of the old federal meat grades. The change was made to make room for a new bracketing of some of the meat which under the old terminology was known as "Commercial."

Professor Loeffel states mature animals, the harbore or beef now makes up the commercial grade while the soft-boiled or the lightly fleshed young cattle has been shifted to the good category. Beef previously sold as good now becomes choice, while the latter is now known as prime along with beef previously classified as prime.

The revised grades are prime, choice, good, commercial, utility, cutter and canner in that order of quality. The choice grade is recommended for the homemaker who wants top quality. The choice grade is recommended for the homemaker who wants top quality disengarding cost. The choice grade comes from corn-fed steers and heifers. It's tasty, tender and juicy. Tender cuts such as sirloin, porterhouse and club steak make excellent broilers. Rib and rump are recommended for oven roasts and the steaks for broiling while the other cuts of the choice grade are suitable for braising and pan-broiling.

At the present time from the nutritional standpoint there is no correlation between grade and nutritive value. Meat is bought for the protein content as a source of energy. For this reason the homemaker should not overlook the more economical cuts or the lower grades. Lower grades of meat and less tender cuts requires slow cooking in moist heat such as braising, simmering or stewing. Prof. Loeffel warns that meat should never be "boiled." Such treatment hardens the fibers and lowers its tenderness.

In changing the grades, the homemaker should not confuse the inspecting and the grading. The inspecting is for wholesomeness and is done by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the USDA. Meat grading is under the Production Marketing Administration and is only a means of designating quality.

Rogers Sets New Scoring Record As Union Wins

Cliff Rogers set a new scoring record for Union athletes as he led his team to a 52-38 cage win over Bartlett, Iowa. Rogers dunked 31 points in setting the new school record. His feat was accomplished despite a handicap of having to wear a special face mask, after he was injured playing volleyball.

The Union cagers, with Rogers pacing the attack, were held to a slim one-point lead at the intermission, leaving the floor with the score 21-20 in their favor. But a second half rally gave the Cass county crew a commanding lead as they won going away. Howery, Bartlett high scorer, hit 18 points to trail Rogers in the scoring department. Union will meet Murdock Wednesday night in the first round of the Cass County Conference basketball tournament. The tournament will be held at Elmwood.

County Basketball Tourney Is Slated

Elmwood will be host to the Cass County Conference basketball tournament to be held January 24 through the 29th. Eagle and Avoca have been rated the teams to beat. Trophies will be awarded to the top three teams. First round play has Eagle opposing Weeping Water; Avoca against Nehawka; Murdock meeting Union and Elmwood seeking a win over Greenwood. Alvo and Louisville drew first round byes.

Murdock Wallops Springfield 40-18

Murdock had little trouble on the court against Springfield last week at the Cass county crew won by a one-handed score of 40-18. Albert Thiel paced the Murdock scoring attack with 13 counters. Meisinger hit eight to lead Springfield. The Murdock Reserves made it a clean sweep by edging the Springfield second team 23-21 in the preliminary game.

ONE WAY TO REDUCE SPRINGFIELD, MASS. (UP) —

Robert H. Smith of Erie, Pa., was granted a divorce because he said his wife beat him for not knowing how to dance the polka. Smith told the court his wife slapped and kicked him until his weight dropped from 165 pounds to 140.

WHAT NO BEANS? SAUGU, MASS. (UP) —

The high cost of living has caught up even with the famed Boston bean. The women of the Methodist church of the Redeemer called off a bean supper because beans "used to be eight cents a pound and now they are between 25 and 28 cents."

STOPOVER DRAWN OUT FORT WORTH, TEX. (UP) —

Jack Ferguson stopped over here for a visit while en route by train from Virginia to Denver. He liked the place so well he decided to stay a while. That was in 1900 and he's still here.

New Refrigerators Are Shown Here

New 1951 model International Harvester refrigerators have been received and are on display at Sutes Farm Equipment Co. The new freezers have full-width freezer lockers, holding 35 pounds of food; full-width chili trays that store up to 15 1/2 pounds of meat; storage capacity for 25 full quart bottles and up to 14.9 square feet of shelf area.

Ken Weaver, manager of the store here, termed the refrigerators years ahead in styling, performance, construction and dependability. Other features of the new International Harvester refrigerators are full-length, x-braced doors; acid resistant porcelain enamel interiors; adjustable temperature controls; automatic interior lights, hermetically sealed refrigerating units with a five-year warranty; and built-in bottle openers.

Customers are also offered a choice of color accents in the door handles. Weaver said the buyer has a choice of 10 colors in interchangeable door handles.

LIMITS ON TROUT LINCOLN—

Nebraska anglers received another boost as the State Game Commission announced that effective Feb. 15, the trout season will open on a year-around basis. Last year the season ran from April 1 through October 31. By bringing the trout season on a 365-day basis, there is now a continuous season throughout the year on all species of fish found in the state.

The bag and possession limit on trout was cut slightly to partially offset the longer season. The bag and possession limits are now 5 and 5 as compared to 20 pounds plus one trout but not more than 10 trout in 1950. As an indication that Nebraska's introduction of white bass is doing exceptionally well, the Game Commissioners doubled the bag and possession limits to 10 and 10. The white bass is rapidly becoming popular at the state's numerous reservoirs.

The daily bag and possession limits on crappie were cut to 10 and 10 from 15 and 15. A 25-bag and possession limit was placed on perch.

COLD CASH MELTS JEFFERSON, ORE. (UP) —

With her husband, Sven Johan, she had come to Nebraska territory from Sweden, bringing with her a doughnut-making machine which had originated only in that Scandinavian home-land of so many pioneer Nebraskans.

It wasn't long before the Peterson home was a favorite stopping place, for Indians as well as whites. Among the first of the comely Matilda's doughnuts became a legend, and she became known as "The Doughnut Squaw."

One day, so the story goes, a visiting chief, completely charmed by the lady of the household and her cookery offered to trade Sven three squaws for the Doughnut Squaw. The amused husband jokingly agreed and promptly forgot about it.

Not so the Indian. A few days later he appeared at the door with three squaws in tow all set to demand performance. Scared and angry, Mrs. Peterson loosed Viking thunder and lightning on her penitent and panicky spouse before she ran for help.

Even though Sven was well and favorably known among the Indians, he now was in a desperate situation. The Indians were in no mood to have the bargain cancelled and it was only after much consideration that they agreed to call it off.

The grandsons, who knew Matilda in later years as a dominant and vigorous figure in an aggressive business community, venture the explanation that the Chief decided to call the deal off lest he and his tribe be ruled by "The Doughnut Squaw." As they wrote me, "he had seen her flash eagle and regal and he was bargaining for decency and doughnuts."

It's a good story.
