The Duroc herd owned by Leonard C. Stoehr, of Plattsmouth, is one of the official Production-Tested Duroc Herds for 1950 according to word just received from B. R. Evans, secretary of the United Duroc Record Association.
This recognition comes to breeders who have kept production records on all of the litters farrowed during the year. Thirty production minded Duroc breeders kept records last year.
Recognition was achieved in the largest swine testing program of any breed. The Duroc Production Registry program hit a new all-time high with 4,185 nominations for PR in 1950. Entries were made by 977 breeders in 39 different states from North Carolina to California. The entire program is designed as an improvement project, rather than a contest, to help swine producers select qualified breeding animals with production records.
