At the same time we recognize and accept with a deep sense of obligation the duties and responsibilities which such support inspires. Your Red Cross service and the need to mobilize for defense now to the attention of the people of this community was an important factor in the success of the campaign.

Your contribution of time and ability deserves consideration as public service of the first rank. Please accept our thanks. Gratefully, Senior Woman's Club, Alpha M.
Muncie, Red Cross chairman.

Other highlights of the week in the legislature: Senator Williams apologized to his colleagues for storming from a committee hearing. "It's never intelligent to lose one's temper," Williams said, "but there are times when the circumstances become almost unbearable." Then Williams read a two-page statement in which he questioned the value of the legislative council. He complained that some senators are unwilling to support bills which they helped to create by their participating in legislative council studies.
Sen. John Adams of Omaha, only Negro member of the legislature, failed, despite an impassioned plea lasting 30 minutes, to get enough votes to raise his fair employment practices bill, killed earlier by the labor committee.
Sen. Jack Larkin of Omaha, was unsuccessful in his second attempt to kill the public housing referendum bill after a spirited debate with Sen. John P.
McKnight of Auburn, intro-ducer of the measure.
Sen. Dwight Burney's bill to provide ten more highway scales to enforce overloading laws passed its first test on the floor.
Monday - Marcus Poteet, commission chairman, said that Omaha and northeast Nebraska were the "territory" of Commissioner Blaine Young of Omaha and the other commissioners had no authority there. Young denied this.
Tuesday - Gov. Val Peterson called in the three commissioners to knock their heads together. He told them to "stop this unseemly bickering" and they meekly agreed.
Wednesday - The commission started looking for a law enforcement chief following the governor's order to hire one immediately. In the meantime, he assigned Lt. L. E. Schottler of the safety patrol to the job for 30 days.
Thursday - This was a big day.
Attorney General C. S. Beck ruled the one-ball machines and pinball machines which yield free games were illegal gambling devices. Charges have been made of "payoffs" by Omaha tavern operators to protect one-ball machines. Sen. Hugh Carson of Ord, who is responsible for the probe of the liquor commission, demanded that the members be suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.
The governor said he couldn't do that as a matter of "fair play." Then Carson suggested that the legislature impeach the commissioners.
Friday - Commenting on a proposed bill by Senator Carson overhauling the organization of the commission, Governor Peterson said a law enforcement officer could accomplish the same thing as a department director, as proposed by Carson.
But, said Peterson, he was willing to study Carson's proposal on its merits. At the same press conference, the governor announced that he would ask the legislature this week to approve a bill to provide for automatic suspensions of the license of establishments convicted of employing gambling devices.
Amid these goings-on, the special legislative probe committee, headed by Sen. Ray Babcock of Not all the probe news was made by Babcock's committee.

At the same time it was conducting hearings, another special legislative committee, was meeting across the capitol. Sen.
W. J. Williams' group to study the operation of the state assistance department.
If the first meeting was an indication of things to come there will be a lot of charges and counter charges between the state agency and the county welfare departments.
Some of the most vocal critics of the state aid department have been county directors. Douglas County Chief Phil Vogt, for instance, has called the state setup "lousy."
Neil C. Vandemoer said that many county offices are overstaffed, but denied he had too many employees.
Sen. John Beaver of Beemer asked who was responsible for the over-staffing.
Vandemoer answered:
"The county boards and the county directors. If there are too many employees, the county boards are at fault. They hire and they fire. Some county board members are not willing to put in the time to supervise closely."
Williams set the next meeting with Vandemoer and the board of control members for this week.
