Athletic Banquet Is Held At Alvo

Friday night, March 30th, was the scene of a gala occasion. The Methodist church basement was decorated gaily with orange and black crepe paper. The three trophies the Alvo teams won this year in the three major sports were displayed prominently on the speakers table. The reason for all this activity and decoration was that the first annual Alvo high school athletic banquet was to be held. The W. S. C. S. served the banquet to 110 guests. The program consisted of community singing, a film of the 1950 Kansas-Nebraska football game. Coach Mayfield made an appropriate speech and presented the letters to the following men:

Budding Diplomat Turns to Metal Crafts

ALFRED, N. Y.—Peter C. Aitchison, 26-year-old student in Alfred University's school for American craftsmen, is a diplomat turned craftsman.

After spending five years preparing himself for the diplomatic field, Aitchison shelved the thing because he felt he "could find more freedom for individual expression" working with his hands.

Aitchison enrolled at Alfred this past fall and hopes to do creative metal smithing when he finishes his two-year course.

Allergies Seem Clue To Multiple Sclerosis

CLEVELAND—In attempts to solve the age-old riddle of multiple sclerosis, doctors are turning their investigation to allergies, delegates to the international post-graduate medical assembly here were told.

Dr. Hans H. F. Reese, University of Wisconsin medical school neuro-psychiatrist, said the puzzles of the dreaded tissue-hardening disease may be solved in the allergies.

He attributed 10 per cent of all neuro-psychiatric admissions to mental hospitals to multiple sclerosis.

Farmers Urged To Boost Corn Acreage

Nebraska farmers need to plant nine hundred thousand acres of corn more than they intended to plant on March 1, 1951, according to Evan H. Armstrong, chairman Cass County Production and Marketing Administration committee. He indicated this additional acreage was needed if Nebraska is to produce enough corn to do its share in producing the feed to maintain livestock production.

Mr. Armstrong also pointed out that unless the acreage planted is increased above that indicated on March 1, 1951, the reserve of corn would probably be down to under 300 million bushels by October, 1952. At present rates of use that would only be about one month's supply which is not enough in times of emergency.

The closing date for signing up for the 1951 farm program is April 15, 1951.

Highway accident rates increase from 24 to 53 per cent during the ice and snow months.
