CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP

We wish to announce purchase of the Welsheimer Firestone Store in Plattsmouth, taking over active management of the store today (Thursday). In the future the store will be known as Meisinger's Firestone Store.

To many residents of this area we need no introduction as we have only "come back home." Although living in California for a few years, we as native Cass Countians decided to cast our future with the folks we know and love best — in Plattsmouth and Cass county.

Many changes will be made in the appearance of the Firestone Store both inside and out during the next few weeks. During this period of remodeling we will endeavor to give the same thoughtful service and greatest values as in the past. We ask that you come in and renew our friendships and bear with us until we can arrange for a great Firestone Formal Opening in the very near future.

Look to Meisinger's Firestone Store for the best buys in town.

Camp For Diabetic Children Planned

The Nebraska State Medical Association announced Thursday the establishment of a new two-week summer camp for the diabetic children of Nebraska to be known as Springdale Camp and which will be held annually at the Girl Scout's Camp Catron in Nebraska City.

A spokesman for the state medical association, Dr. Floyd Rogers, Lincoln, stated that the camp this year will be held June 10-23.

Purpose of the camp is threefold:

1. To give the diabetic child proper instruction regarding the nature of diabetes.
2. Provide a healthy and happy camping experience which is not often available to a diabetic child.
3. Give the parents a small measure of freedom from their constant responsibility and at the same time provide a safe "first escape" from parental care.

A physician and graduate nurse will reside at the camp during the two-week period.

Royal Arch Degree Is Conferred On James McMillan

Monday night Nebraska chapter No. 3 Royal Arch Masons met at the lodge rooms in the Masonic building. The Royal Arch degree was conferred on James McMillan by Warren Rhylander, high priest.

Following the ritualistic work, members were treated to lunch prepared by the committee.

Frank Kloupka of Denver came in Monday for a visit here at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. James Nowacek, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hiber and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vitousek.

Awards Given To Union Scholars at Commencement

UNION — (Special) — Commencement exercises were held at the Baptist church last Wednesday evening, May 9, at 8 o'clock. The professional was played by Mrs. Howard Snodgrass and the invocation was given by Rev. McMillan, pastor of the church. A special number, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" was given by Barbara Garrens, Charles James and Marvin Atterberg.

Supt. Parsons introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. Merriett, who used as his subject, "Sound Off." Rev. Merriett gave a very fine message full of spirit and humor with many inspiring and helpful suggestions for the senior class as they take up their separate duties in the days to follow.

Mrs. Sarah Rich presented her 8th grade to the board of education. The graduates were Suzanne Kendall, Nancy Jane Land, Larry Willis, Richard Midkiff, Dale Draper, Dwayne Hinton and Ronnie Meade. Lewis Rogers presented them their diplomas. Clifford Rogers gave the valedictory address and Bonnie Baker was the salutatorian. Supt. Parsons presented the senior class to the board of education and Lewis Rogers presented the class diplomas. The seniors were Clifford Rogers, Lawrence Lutz, Ronald Eaton, Marvin Balfour, Bonnie Baker, Carol Roder, Mary Morton and Mary McClure.

The class motto was "In ourselves the Future Lies," and the class flower was yellow bud roses. Scholarship awards were as follows and were presented by Principal John McQuinn and Supt. Parsons: Carol Roder, business college, Bonnie Baker, church school, and salutatorian award and medal and Clifford Rogers won the regents scholarship and a certificate and medal. Benediction was by Rev. McMillan.

Cass County Extension Notes

Architectural Effects of Color

Let's talk about the architecture of your rooms. Sounds impressive, doesn't it? Actually that's just the walls, ceiling, doors, windows, etc.

Is the room so square you feel as though you were living in a box? What about the ceiling? Does it seem to rest on your head? Would you like to give your walls a "good push"? You can change all this and you needn't be Hercules. It can be achieved with a can of paint—in the right color, of course.

Measure your room and put the floor plan down on your planning chart. A quarter of an inch equals a foot, so draw your room to scale. Indicate the placement of doors and windows on the plan.

The size and shape of the room will have a bearing on the colors you select. Cool colors are expanding and make a room look larger. Warm colors make a room look smaller. Tints give the illusion of space, deep dark values make a room seem smaller.

One light wall and three darker walls will make a square room seem less square. A long narrow room will seem wider if the long walls are painted a greyed tone and the end walls a brighter, higher keyed color, or darker color.

Woodtrim may contrast with the wall color or blend with it. Contrasting color will make the woodtrim more noticeable and tends to cut down the apparent size of a room. Blending the woodtrim with the wall will minimize its presence, badly placed windows, etc.

Generally, a room should be decorated in an ascending scale of values, i. e.—the floor should be the darkest value, the walls the lighter, and the ceiling the lightest of all.

Light colors reflect a great deal of light, while dark colors absorb light. The amount of sunlight a room receives is an important factor. Some rooms receive a great deal of early morning glare. If it makes you waken too early, dark green, navy, or smoke grey walls will help to absorb some of the glare.

On the other hand, if a room receives little sunlight, warm tints will be the happiest choice. Yellow is the closest to sunlight.

Do not forget the added decorative possibilities of colored ceilings. Here again the amount of light the room receives is important. Dark ceilings will make a high ceiling seem lower, but will also absorb light. Light ceilings make the ceiling recede and reflect light. The effect of an over high ceiling can also be counteracted by a chair-rail and dado of a contrasting color.

The same principles apply to the use of wallpaper or paint. Where walls are in poor condition, wallpaper will do a better camouflage job than paint. Striped wallpaper will make a ceiling seem higher. A large all-over floral or medallion design will make a large room appear less barn-like. Flowered wallpaper on a ceiling will lower it. A tiny all-over floral in a room with dormer windows and slanted ceilings or walls will help to unify the whole.

Scenic wallpapers and leaf patterns add depth and distance. Papers with strong advancing color are suitable for large rooms only; while papers with soft receding colors and small scale designs are perfect for small rooms.

Sometimes one wall of pattern and three painted or solid papered walls can be very interesting. In this way we are able to use small quantities of very unusual wallpaper without the expense of papering an entire room. Unusual decorative effects may be
