Sweeten Fruit Before Freezing
Most frozen fruits have better flavor and texture if packed in sugar or syrup than if unsweetened. Exceptions to this rule are rhubarb, gooseberries, currants, figs and cranberries, which freeze as well without as with sweetening.

The best way to pack a fruit for freezing depends on how it will be used. Fruit packed in syrup generally is best served "as is" for dessert; fruit packed in dry sugar or unsweetened is better for pie or other cooking use because it is less liquid. Even though most unsweetened fruit is not of highest quality when frozen, it may be packed this way for special diets.

The syrup recommended for most fruits is a 40 per cent syrup—that is, 3 cups of sugar dissolved in 4 cups of water. For some mild-flavored fruits—such as pineapple wedges or cantaloupe balls—a less sweet syrup is better because it does not mask the delicate fruit flavor. In contrast very sour fruits like sour cherries may need a sweeter syrup. Currant syrup may replace up to a fourth of the sugar in the syrup, if desired. An even larger proportion of corn syrup may be used if the newer, very bland, light-colored kind is chosen.

Honey also may be used to replace one-fourth of the sugar in the syrup for freezing fruit, but only if the family likes its very definite flavor which may mask the fruit flavor. The very light-colored mild honey will change the natural fruit flavor less than the strong-flavored type.

For a dry sugar pack, simply cut fruit into a bowl, sprinkle on sugar as required for the fruit, then mix gently with a large spoon until the sugar dissolves in the juice from the fruit.

Granulated sugar, either beet or cane, may be used to make the syrup or to pack fruit in dry sugar.

Cass Sheep Club Has Meeting Sunday

Cass County Sheep Club met at the home of Roy Smith Sunday, July 15. Highlight of the meeting was an inspection of his sheep. The group also discussed taking lambs to the fair. Members read from their books how to get lambs ready for judging. They also made plans for a picnic which will be held July 29 at the home of their leader, Mrs. Weiss.

Atomic Farmers Study Manual

The Atomic Farmers held their seventh meeting of the year at the home of Weldon Stoehr recently with 11 members present.

The group studied the tractor "operator's manual" and the air cleaner. Members also talked out a trip to Illinois and training demonstration. Ralph Hill was a visitor.

The next meeting will be at the home of Dean Meisinger August 2nd. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Stoehr who was assisted by Mrs. Peter Halmes.

CASS DRUG presents

RHYMES OF REASON

This dynamically different comic strip will appear every Thursday in The Plattsmouth Journal to bring you logic and laughter . . . and a poetic reminder — "IT PAYS TO DEAL AT CASS DRUG"

RHYMES OF REASON begins next Thursday and will appear within our regular advertisement. We take great pleasure in bringing this national cartoon feature to Plattsmouth.
