

Jack And Melvin Todd Exhibit Top Beef At Calf Show

Jack Todd, Plattsmouth high school senior, walked off with top honors in three divisions of the King Korn Carnival Calf Show held here last week.

Mr. Todd exhibited the Grand Champion Steer, a Hereford; took first place in the senior showmanship contest; and then Friday morning saw his prize winning steer sell for 56 cents a pound.

Prediction Is Correct

Faith in the weatherman's predictions has been temporarily restored here.

Threatened with postponement of the Friday night Merchants and G. I. parade, carnival officials phoned the weather bureau at 4:30 p. m., asking about the rain prospects.

Officials were informed that the rain would continue for about two hours and not more than three.

The parade started at 7:30 and it stopped raining.

Main Street Scene Tops In Farmers' Parade

"Plattsmouth's Main Street in 1870" presented by the Merry Workers Club took first in the Thursday afternoon presentation of the annual Farmer's Day Parade. The float was driven by Niel Snell and won the club top money of $15.

In second place was the Social Workers Flower Club's float "Time Made History" good for $10. Fairview Women's Club won $7.50 and third place with its float, "30 Years, 1921-1951." Drville Kahler and Eno Ahrens drove the two floats.

"1875 Transportation" entered by Shrader Rhoden and driven by Jerome Rhodm took fourth prize and $5.

Crowns rating cash prizes were Bob Crom, Ed Kohrell, Kenneth Aylor and Tommy Christenham.

Other parade entries included a grand array of top horses from the Plattsmouth and Western Iowa vicinities, display of United Nations flags, and bands from Plattsmouth, Nebraska City, Bellevue, Malvern and Sidney, Iowa.

Drills by the Sidney, Iowa, and Bellevue bands followed the parade, while horse entries in the parade prepared for the afternoon horse show.

Judge Fay H. Pollock of Stanton, will be on the Cass county district court bench for the hearing of jury trials starting October 22.

Judge Pollock will hear the remaining cases now scheduled.

Attorney Francis M. Casey is at St. Joseph's hospital at Omaha, where he was taken last week for surgery.

Cadet Band Unveiled Here Friday

The Junior high school Cadet Band was unveiled here Friday during the school parade at the King Korn Carnival. The band, held in general seclusion for almost a year, made its official first public appearance during the parade.

And hundreds of local onlookers watched in amazement as the youthful band members performed with the ability of seasoned veterans.

Music Director Ward Pascherer reveals that the band got its initial start last October when about half of the members began a study and rehearsal. The other half started this past June. The only other appearance of the group was to band members' parents last spring.

Through the summer Mr. Pascherer directed the group in marching exercises, after they had successfully mastered group and private instruction.

Seven of the original group last fall are now playing with the high school band. Seventeen vacancies are expected in the senior band in another year. Members of the Cadet Band will fill the vacancies. Others will continue to participate in Cadet Band activities.

Mr. Pascherer said that another 20 to 25 beginners will start their training next month. They will in time be promoted to the Cadet Band.

Rural School Entries Second High In History

The 1951 Korn Carnival rural school parade drew the second largest number of entries in its history. A Behrend's disclosed twenty-two rural schools were entered.

And witnesses to the combination rural school, Kiddies, and city school parade, will testify that the floats were better than any previously exhibited.

First prize went to District 5, Rock Bluff school, taught by Mrs. Lois Troop. The float entitled "Presidential Hall of Fame" depicted busts of all presidents of the United States.

Second went to District 27, Cottonwood, taught by Dorothy Hill. Ed Meisinger was driver. Delma Cundall's Eight, Mile Grove school, district 25, was third. Robert Kiser was driver.

Other entries were Fairview, district 9, taught by Wanda Shrader; Sciota, district 11, taught by Mrs. Myrtle Wolf; Cedar Creek, district 31, taught by Mrs. Selma Johnson; Becker, district 41, taught by Neil Lancaster; Taylor, district 37, taught by Miss Joy Hill; Little Brick, district 45, taught by Mrs. DeLora Pollard; district 55, taught by Lela Edmonds; Glendale, district 47, taught by Ana Marie Chriswiser; Bestor, district 42, taught by Mrs. Lucille McLean; Callom, district 30, taught by Myrna Ingram; Jean, district 3, taught by Mrs. Clara Becker; Horning, district 2, taught by Mildred Newton; Keil, district 97, taught by Mrs. Irvin Meisinger; Rock Creek, district 6, taught by Mrs. Charline Schwab; Kenosha, district 8, taught by Florence Fisher; Woodbine, district 29, taught by Don Baker; Lewistown, district 7, taught by Elaine Nickes; Pleasant View, district 80, taught by Finner Fahrlander; and Stull, district 28, taught by Lois Sell.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dall of Manly were in the city Friday visiting friends.

Father James Hennessey of St. Patrick's church, Manly, was in Plattsmouth Friday to enjoy the dinner at St. John's hall.

Street Employees Rate Hearty Thanks

Employees of the city street department know how much work there is in connection with the King Korn Carnival. They spent the greater part of three days working with Carnival officials setting things in order. Then, too, they drew the main clean up detail when it was all over.

Their cooperation, and that of the city, rates the full-hearted applause of Carnival officials.

Improving Roads Leads Discussion Of Farm Bureau

Improving county roads was the main business of the evening at the last monthly meeting of the Cass County Farm Bureau Board. Eighteen board members and two visitors were present to discuss this problem along with other Farm Bureau business.

To obtain a clearer picture of the needs of the county, the Farm Bureau Board members invited the three county commissioners to meet with them. H. L. Bornemeier, commissioner of the third district, was the only one able to be present. He presented a comprehensive picture of problems in his district, among them being the lack of funds with which to operate the county's business. He pointed out that it now costs nearly $10,000 to get two carloads of bridge plank delivered to the county. It also has been very difficult to obtain competent help, and it is out of the question to hire a county engineer at the salary the county can offer.

In presenting the distribution of the tax dollar, Mr. Bornemeier reminded the board members that county officials' salaries, assistance funds, etc., must be paid whether or not there is any left over for roads. Actually, 3c of the county tax dollar goes for roads and 4c for bridges.

Following Mr. Bornemeier's discussion, board members engaged in questions and answers on the possibility of feasibility of special levies or taxes to make more funds available if and when needed. The possibility of putting direct responsibility for roads and bridges on an engineer and his assistant with the commissioners acting as administrative heads was also discussed with Mr. Bornemeier.

Since the proposed bridge levy, which was approved by Farm Bureau was defeated at the last election, it is expected that the evening's discussion will result in a definite county road improvement recommendation at the annual meeting on October 23, when Farm Bureau members will vote on resolutions which will form the policies of the County Farm Bureau for the coming year.

ON COMMITTEE
Also helping on the Koronation committee last week were Mrs. Homer Lutz, Mrs. Dale Bowman, Mrs. August Gall, Mrs. Frank Meyers and Alice Landman. Miss Mildred Hall said today.

St. John's And High School Tie For First Place

St. John's school and Plattsmouth high school shared first place honors in the Plattsmouth school parade held here Friday afternoon.

St. John's float depicted the Pilgrims going to church. The high school's winning float was based on Valley Forge.

Third place was won by Columbian school. Its float showed the landing of Columbus. "The Melting Pot," entry of Wintersteen school, was awarded fourth place by Judges James Begley and C. C. Girardot.

Other float entries were First Ward, the atomic bomb blast; high school, "Today Verses Tomorrow"; Central school, "Keep America as Columbus Discovered It, Free"; and the high school Pep club.

Beef Increase Okayed By OPS

The Office of Price Stabilization recently made some important changes in its price program.

In order to give packers their fair profits (as guaranteed under the Capehart amendment to the Defense Production Act), OPS has announced a penny-a-pound increase in the ceiling price of whole beef. This change also means that retail prices of some beef cuts will be allowed to increase slightly.
