survey of farm rental arrangements. The survey is being conducted by land-grant colleges in seven states with the cooperation of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Questionnaires were mailed earlier this week from the University of Nebraska. Men who received the questionnaire were selected at random from a list of all local farmers who operate and rent land. The survey is designed to gather information on leasing arrangements throughout the state. The extension service at the Ag. College receives scores of questions annually about leases and needs more comprehensive information to answer the questions correctly. Cass county farmers receiving the questionnaires are urged to cooperate by filling them out and returning them as requested.

A farm lease workshop will be conducted at Weeping Water February 20 at 9:30 a. m. The meeting is open to the public. Landowners, tenants and farm managers are urged to attend. The meeting will be at the Ag. auditorium.
