Mrs. Parsell Is W.S.C.S. Hostess

Mrs. Ray Parsell was hostess chairman for the February meeting of the W. S. C. S. at the Methodist church. Mrs. Bucknell led devotions, "A Rest for the People of God" and Mrs. Whittemore gave the lesson on "Trouble Spots Around the World" and "Let Courage Rise With Danger." Mrs. Leavitt had the topic, "India," giving late reports from there. The special numbers were two readings by Mrs. Parsell. Mrs. Reber gave thoughts from the life and work of the great Negro woman leader, Mrs. Mary Bethune of Florida. Amid hard circumstances she founded the Faith Girls' school, which was later united with a boys school to become the Cook and Bethune College in Daytona Beach. Mrs. Horton reviewed briefly "The Bishop of the Great Plains." This was George Allen Beecher and his work was in far western Nebraska. It was reported that a gift of $100 was presented to the society by the children of Mrs. Albert Lake, a former member of the church, whose funeral was held recently. Birthdays were recognized when the honorees ate at a Valentine decorated table arranged by Mrs. Fred Buell. Among those present was Miss Ward at this table.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buell and son, Noble, Mrs. Ralph Dorr, and Mr. and Mrs. Marion McCrory drove to Omaha Sunday to attend the golden wedding anniversary of their sister and husband, Oscar Allen and Myrtle McCrory Allen.

OGALLALA, HERE I COME There's no end to surprises—as the Ogallala Chamber of Commerce has learned. Recently it received a request from a resident of Barcelona, Spain, for a "tourist folder" of the community. It seems the gentleman wants to take a nice, long trip. P.S. He's getting his folder.

It's imported more than five million tons of coal from the U. S. last year (1951).

BIRTH

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Patterson received a call from Concordia, Kan., telling them of the arrival of a grandson. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Clark. Mrs. Clark is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patterson. This is the first grandson in the family.

IN THE FIRST three weeks of the new year editors of weekly newspapers in the home towns across the nation filled their editorial columns with criticism of things past and, reluctantly, expressed hopes for 1952.

In a serious vein, Lowell Nye, writing in the Harvard Herald, Harvard, Ill., termed 1952 the year of decision. Said Editor Nye, who does not like to pull his punches: "Will we continue to drift along in the channel of inflation, loose political morals, a ruinous foreign policy, and all those other evils that have made 1951 a sorry period in American history; or will we rise up in 1952 and restore our beloved republic to the highest level our founding fathers intended that it should be by effecting a change in our national administration?"

"Our federal government has become too large a thing to regard it as something apart—too far-reaching and expensive an operation to say that we can have a Happy New Year in spite of it." Editor Nye had made a point!

The Lighter Touch

And while Mr. Nye was preaching reform, The Hanterdon County Democrat, Flemington, N.J., was reporting on the weather and snow-fall in Clinton, N. J. (a short distance away), in a humorous tone. In Carpy's Quips the following appeared: "Official ears must have burned in Clinton last week, but not enough to melt the ice on Main Street.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

Shoppers whose cars were sliding around were burned up enough to have melted it, but not until several days later did the town fathers break down and distribute a little sand. One of the shoppers, bursting forth into verse, came up with the following:

"Clinton retailers, wishing trade, Look on while people slip and wade, Altho they'll live in muck and mud When their own callers have a flood. The Chief is faithful in remarking Cars too long at icy parking, But no one goes with spade and sand To give a skidding car a hand. With easier places on the pike— What if the trade went on strike?"

Tongue in Cheek

With tongue in cheek, Frank R. Neu, editor of The Glenwood City Tribune, Glenwood City, Wis., commented on the past year:

"We'd like to pass out a few bouquets to people and groups whom we think deserve a little extra attention for their activities: "... To our school teachers, who put up with my brat and yours more of the time than most of us do, for their efforts to plug the gaps left by us parents in the training of our youngsters."

"... To Hopalong Cassidy who has brought up a new generation of gun-toting 'good boys' via television, and who, incidentally, has been a great boon to the manufacturers of those fancy and costly holster sets, and who has added such imaginative phrases as "Trip-A-Long Tragedy" and "Slip-A-Long Sloppily" to our already colorful language."

Seven Points For Preventing Swine Enteritis Told

Disease prevention and indiscriminate use of new drugs were linked up today in a special drive to cut swine enteritis losses on farms this winter and spring.

"Farmers must remember that enteritis is not a single disease," reports the American Foundation for Animal Health. "It covers a dozen different infections and disorders. For this reason, treating with penicillin or other costly drugs may be useless. Treatment depends on the individual herd and should be determined only after an accurate veterinary diagnosis."

"Instead of using drugs indiscriminately, farmers can do more to control enteritis by keeping the germs away from the premises in the first place."

The Foundation suggested these seven preventive steps:

(1) Isolate newly-purchased swine from the home herd until they are known to be free of enteritis. (2) Control internal and external parasites. (3) Keep swine away from old hog lots, contaminated pastures, cow pastures, stagnant pools and other sources of infection. (4) Keep feeding and watering equipment clean. (5) Feed balanced rations, and don't overfeed rich concentrates. (6) Earmark sows and their litters to identify and weed out carriers. (7) Watch for scouring, loss of weight and unthrifty pigs. At the first sign of trouble, get a diagnosis and isolate the sick animals from those which are healthy."
