Zippor Coatman, County Native, Dies Recently

Zippor Asa Coatman was born March 23, 1871, near Avoca, Neb., and died at his home August 30, 1952. He was a resident of Cass county all of his life, being one of the successful farmers here, as was his father, Wm. Coatman before him.

He was a member of the Christian church for many years, first at Avoca, and later at Elmwood.

He is survived by his wife, Ella, daughter Charlotte and granddaughter, and many other relatives.

Funeral services were at the Christian church on Tuesday afternoon conducted by the pastor, Rev. N. F. Horn. He spoke highly of the deceased, having first met him 30 years ago. His text was from the book of the Revelation. Miss Joycecla Eidemiller accompanied Mrs. Amy Irons and Mrs. Creamer who sang "There'll Be No Dark Valley," "Sometime We'll Understand" and "No Night There." Casket bearers were Ralph Creamer, Leonard Parish, John Dankleff, Joe Parriott and Robert Dankleff. Burial was in

Bovine Disease Invasion Spreads; Warning Sounded

Official disclosure that the disease, bovine leptospirosis, has invaded still another state, brought a warning today from the American Foundation for Animal Health that this problem is now becoming one of the serious new threats to cattle health in this country.

Foundation authorities cited these points for farmers to remember, in guarding against the disease:

"Leptospirosis is caused by a spiral-shaped germ that gets into the blood stream of cattle through the skin, or through the digestive, respiratory and reproductive tracts. It is spread by contact with infected animals, also by rats.

"Symptoms in some cases may include sudden illness, loss of appetite, fever, depression and abortion. In other cases, however, the only warning may be a thickening and yellowness of the milk, and a drop in milk production.

"As many as 30 per cent of the pregnant cows may lose their calves. Death losses average about 5 per cent, although 70 per cent of the herd may become infected," the Foundation said.

"Cattle that recover can remain carriers for months, and spread the disease to other animals.

"When leptospirosis is suspected it is necessary for the veterinarian to have careful laboratory tests made before a sure diagnosis can be given. Authorities say that early diagnosis and treatments are important both in curbing losses and in getting milk production back to normal.

Coal touches the life of every person and every productive activity.

DRIVING LESSON FUNDS
NEWTON, Mass.—While Thomas Mullen, of Watertown, was trying to teach his wife to drive, the car tore through a fence, sped up an embankment and dove into 9 feet of water in a pond. Mullen pushed his wife through the driver's window and both swam to safety 20 feet to shore. The swim ended the lesson.

STORK BEATS STORK

MADISON, Wis.—The stork beat a Stork in a race to the Richard Jensen home. Robert Stork, an ambulance driver, received a hurried call to the Jensen home but when he got there Mrs. Jensen already had given birth to a boy. Stork got into the act, anyway—he took mother and son to a hospital.
