Fashions Solve Junior-Figure Worries

Ruffles Enhance Child-Charm

BY EDNA MILES

ADULTS are not alone in their figure problems or their need for fashions that camouflage faulty points. Children have their problems, such as: too-weedy arms, pipe-stem legs, or the reverse side of the picture, a roly-poly body that's the result of baby fat.

In recent years, designers have come to understand that children need fashions that take cognizance of figure faults. Thus, they are giving them fashions that will foreshorten and soften where it's needed, fashions that will cut down bean-pole height or minimize a roly-poly small girl.

STRIPES AND PUFF SLEEVES HELP

A dust ruffle, for instance, breaks a skirt line and thus detracts from the height of a little girl who's shooting skywards rapidly. Combinations of solid and striped fabrics foreshorten, while puff sleeves soften angular young arms.

Added to these fashion fillips is the convenience that lies in cotton fabrics that are sanforized to prevent shrinkage. This is a factor important to mother since she must handle the laundering and balance the budget at one and the same time. It means, then, that a small wardrobe will retain its fit and therefore, its original good looks.

For growing girls in that "bean pole" stage is this sanforized gingham dress done in two-color small check. Six-inch pleated dust ruffle breaks the skirt line.

Half-and-half is the styling theme of this one-piece sanforized chambray dress designed for the young Miss who needs foreshortening and the softening effect of puff sleeves.

Hallowe'en Party Is Held

The Girl Scouts and Brownies stressed Scout Week at their meetings Thursday. The Scouts also entertained the Brownies at a Hallowe'en party at the Green Nest.

Scout leaders are Mrs. Allan Hansen and Mrs. Vance Balfour.

The members include Francine Jones, Charlene Mayfield, Caroline and Gloria Miller, Marilyn Whipple, Gladys Nixon, Darlene Murdoch, Twila Hicks, Carol Stone, Marilyn Pollard, Rosie Stell, Ann Coster, Sally Carsten of Avoca.

Brownie leaders are Mrs. Elmer Stoll, assisted by Mrs. Donald Stables.

Their members include Cheryl Weik, Sandra Waller, Marlene Eaton, Barbara Chandler, Marjorie Miller, Thelma Rae Kettelut, Norma and Shirley Ross, Marjorie Eaton, Judy Wieckhorst, Bonnie Lacey of Avoca.

A DOOR-MAN?

Baltimore, Md. — Police are still looking for the thief who stole fourteen doors from a housing development in North Linthicum. The doors were to be put up in the new houses but the thief made way with all of them—in assorted sizes.

Vote Nov. 4

OR FOR 4 YEARS
HOLD YOUR PEACE

In plain language:

Vote up or shut up...

Honestly, don't you agree that anyone who doesn't vote shouldn't open up his lips too much about how the country will be run during the next four years?

The Big Day Is November 4
TUESDAY

Miss it and you've missed the freest show on earth: the people of the United States voting how they want freedom to operate for another quartette of years.

Brother and sister, doesn't it run the thrills and chills up and down your spine to figure you're one of the folks who can dictate, just by private crosses on paper, whom you want to represent you?

Remember

Your Vote Counts

Then look at the issues and the candidates.

Get set for November 4—and make your mark.

"See you at the polls!"
