CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 23, 1952.

The Golden Text is: "My soul lengthen, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God." (Psalms 84:2). Other Bible citations include: "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup; thou maintainest my lot. Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore." (Psalms 16:5, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The material body and mind are temporal, but the real man is spiritual and eternal. The identity of the real man is not lost, but found through this explanation: for the conscious infinitude of existence and of all identity is thereby discerned and remains unchanged. It is impossible that man should lose aught that is real; when God is all and eternally his." (Page 302).

Bible Comment:

Deeds Speak Louder Than Pious Words To Show Our Faith

PASSAGES in John's gospel remind us we have only recorded a part of the many things that Jesus did and said. However, the things that are recorded are sufficient to make us believe in Him and thus have life.

When we compare the shortness of the story of Jesus' life as recorded in the gospels, with the lengthy biographies of famous men found on the shelves of every library, we can well appreciate the simplicity and directness with which this story, the greatest ever told, is written.

All unnecessary details are eliminated. We have left the all-important supreme revelation of the Master as the Savior and Life-Giver.

Paul's injunction to the younger man, found in Timothy I, concerns sound thinking. If anyone had the right to give such advice, it was Paul whose whole life was an example of the determining power of belief.

True belief goes beyond all intellectual processes. It quickens the emotions and touches the inner man. It is not what a person says, but in what he does that makes up the man's actual belief.

Thus the real belief is not what one professes, but what one lives and does. If the professing Christian people had really believed and practiced what they professed to believe, our world would be quite different today.

The question for each of us to ponder is: "What do we believe and what do our lives express?"

An interesting account in the biography of John Wesley, that great pioneer of righteousness, reveals that in his day, as in ours, wrong conceptions of salvation robbed people of the grace that saves the soul. Before his conversion, he based his hope for salvation upon three things:

1. Not being as bad as other people.
2. Having a kindness toward religion.
3. Reading my Bible, going to church, and saying my prayers.

His account of his true conversion when he found the Lord Jesus Christ as His personal Savior, is also typical of those in this day who find such labors as the above insufficient and realize as he did: "Ye must be born again."
