Leisure Clothes for Leisure Hours

Lovely Loafing Clothes

BY EDNA MILES

Designed for leisure wear, this three-piece ensemble is completely washable. Short, reversible plaid coat-tops trim two-piece pajamas.

THE trend to clothes designed especially for leisure hours at home is a noticeable one. It's a practical one, since the day of the elaborate tea gown and the flowing hostess gown has long since gone.

Such leisure as the average woman does have is highly valued. For this time, they want fashions that are pretty and comfortable, that wash easily and iron without difficulty. Designer Harry Berger does clothes that meet all of these requirements and have designed flair as an added bonus.

A mandarin coat in three-quarter length is printed in giant gold-tipped butterflies. The coat is quilted and has long sleeves that flair in a wide circle at the wrist. There are big square pockets for holding the little incidentals that women like to carry about the house with them.

This coat tops narrow two-piece pajamas in solid aqua broadcloth. These have the mandarin collar too but sleeves are short. Both coat and pajamas are completely color-fast and washable.

For the very young housewife and the career girl, this same designer has done a short coat and two-piece pajamas. The quilted coat shell is in plaid broadcloth lined in solid color. It's reversible, has big pockets, man-tailored collar and long, full sleeves with adjustable cuff-lengths.

Pajama top is in plaid with pants in solid color. Top and trousers can be worn outdoors as well as in; both are meticulously tailored. These three pieces are completely washable.

This three-quarter length mandarin coat in gold butterfly print is worn for leisure hours over aqua broadcloth pajamas. Both wash and iron beautifully.
