DOCTOR-DRAFT.
House and Senate conferees have agreed on a version of the doctor-draft law which compromises differences between bills passed by the two branches of Congress. Under the compromise, doctors, dentists and veterinarians who served 21 months since September 16, 1940, have no further obligation except in all-out emergency. Those who served 17 months are technically subject to call. Obligation remaining for others ranges from 15 months for those who served between 15 and 17 months to 24 months for those who served less than nine. The $100 a month bonus payment provision for doctors who volunteer remains.

CLOSING CAMPS.
The Army has announced that it is closing seven more camps and installations as an economy measure, with an estimated saving of about $11,000,000 the first year and about $30,000,000 in succeeding years.

OUT OF OLD NEBRASKA

by JAMES C. OLSON, Superintendent STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Judging from their diaries and letters, nothing on the long trip from the Missouri River to California or Oregon left a more lasting impression on the covered wagon emigrants than those sudden violent storms which came up on the prairies. Present day Nebraskans know something about those storms.

Consider, though, the problem of facing one, with all your worldly goods packed in a not too sturdy covered wagon. At their worst, the prairie storms provided a not to be forgotten experience for the overland emigrants.

James Pratt, bound for California in the gold rush of 1849, described a hail storm near the upper California crossing. His own words tell the story very well:

"The lightning flashed, and the heavens crashed with thunder, as fierce and terrible as the description at Signal Mount. The hail came with a roar. The cry was, 'unloose the cattle from the forks of the Platte resulted in the loss of hundreds of cattle and the virtual ruin of some wagon trains. The high wind brought a driving rain which continued all day. That night, Delano wrote, 'We turned into our damp beds with a feeling of cheerfulness, though not despaired.'

Delano reported that for several days they saw families including women and helpless children, left on the prairie hundreds of miles from aid without a means of travel. Many cattle were found twenty-five to thirty miles off the road; many others were not found at all.

The year 1849 appears to have been a particularly stormy one in Nebraska. One of these storms along the Blue was charged with contributing to the death of George Winslow who lies buried near Fairbury. Winslow, a member of a Massachusetts gold seeking company, took sick. He seemed to be improving, but as Brackett Lord wrote from Fort Kearney: "at five o'clock p. m. there came up a most violent shower such an one you perhaps never saw, there is nothing on these plains to break the wind and it sweeps on most furiously. The lightning is truly terrific and when accompanied with wind, hail, and rain as in this case it is truly sublime. To this storm I attribute G's death."

"MATCHBOX RADAR"
A radio-radar beacon device smaller than two matchboxes, will be distributed to aviators to wear on their life jackets. The miniature transmitter-receiver includes batteries, microphone-loudspeaker and aerial that extends to 31 inches and is designed to guide rescuing planes to a survivor drifting in the sea and permit him to communicate with them when they come close enough.

STRICTLY FRESH
INTERNAL REVENUE men caught a check-writing machine making over-size income tax refund checks. Probably just a political machine trying to influence a few votes.

Police caught a Wisconsin bank robber carrying loot in his shoes. At least he was well heeled!

A Bolivar, Mo., bridegroom forgot his bride's last name. "I CAN'T REMEMBER HER NAME" when filling out marriage license blanks. O well! She won't be using it long anyway.

A South Carolina burglar lugged away a 200-pound safe containing confederate money. He'll give it to his confederate-in-crime no doubt.

A lady tavern owner was ordered to remove view-obscuring potted plants from her saloon window. Drinkers will get potted in public from now on.
