CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

The vital role of purity in spiritual progress will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Sacrament."

The Bible selections include this citation from Psalms:
"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer." (19:14).

The following correlative passage will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We shall strive to reach the 'howlo height where God is revealed; and the cornerstone of all spiritual building is purity. The baptism of Spirit, washing the body of all the impurities of flesh, signifies that the pure in heart see God and are approaching spiritual life and its demonstration." (241:24).

The Golden Text is from Galatians: "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." (3:26, 27).

Bible Comment:

Writers of Bible Illustrate Truths Through Symbols

ONE thing about the Bible that many people forget is that it is the Easter book.

The daily language and literature of the East has always been full of figures and symbols very different from much of our prosaic, Western liberalism. The prophets frequently used figures of speech and symbols to express truth.

The parables of Jesus were true to life and revealing in the truth concerning God and man that Jesus sought to impart, but they did not depend upon the incidents described having actually happened.

It was "a certain man" who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and it might have been any man so far as the truth and the teaching were concerned.

The parables are stories and teachings for today, and not just stories of something that happened long ago. Their significance is not as historic incidents, but as spiritual tales, or parables, with universality of application.

Take, for instance, the account of how Eve was created from the rib of Adam. Here is how one great Biblical teacher interprets it.

He suggests that the creation of woman from man's side meant that she was to be his equal and helpmate; not from the head was she created that she should lord over him, nor from the foot, that he should dominate her.

This interpretation is in harmony with the high esteem in which women were held among Jews and in contrast with their inferior position among many other peoples.

The story of the beginning of sin symbolizes the subtle and easy temptation of those made in the image and likeness of God; the essence of sin in disobedience to divine command; the knowledge of good and evil as the result of the fall, and the emergence of man into moral struggle and moral responsibility.
