CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

The importance of honesty and unselfishness in seeking spiritual understanding of God will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Truth" to be read in Christian Science churches Sunday, January 24.
The need of teachableness and receptivity, as highlighted in the parable of the sower, and Jesus' explanation of it, as recorded in the Bible in Luke 8:4-15, will be read.
The following correlative citation will be among selections read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:
"The spiritual sense of truth must be gained before Truth can be understood. This sense is assimilated only as we are honest, unselfish, loving, and meek. In the soil of an honest and good heart the seed must be sown; else it beareth not much fruit, for the swinish element in human nature uproots it." (272:3-8)

Bible Comment:

Laws of Moses Were Enriched By Jesus Christ

A COMPETENT Biblical scholar (in Hastings's Bible Dictionary) has set down as the ideal elements of Jewish Law (1) social justice, (2) purity and (3) honor.

He credits Moses as propounding the laws.
The Ten Commandments are, of course, the most familiar of the laws. They have been widely accepted as a moral code and variously established in the legal codes of many lands.

Despite all the moral laxity of much of modern life, it is still true that the strength and welfare of a people depends upon the reality with which the essence of the Ten Commandments is ingrained in the life and practice of the community.

Integrity to family life, honor of parents, devotion to children, regard for the liberties and rights of others—these are the elements upon which social strength and welfare depend.

The extent to which these elements are denied and disregarded indicates the depths of weakness to which many communities have fallen, and the acuteness of the problems confronting society as a whole.

Yet there is something more, and higher, than the Commandments.

John 1:17 states "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

This does not mean that Jesus originated grace and truth, but that He, as He Himself said, fulfilled what was inherent in the law.

For the New Testament everywhere represents the fulfillment of the law in the commandment of love—"Thou shalt," instead of only "Thou shalt not."

The Ten Commandments would establish correctness of life. The law of love would give that life fullness in the growth of grace and knowledge.

Res emphasized that a completely new survey will be made this year as conditions may have changed.

Commission Session

It was this method of determining which roads will be improved first which was attacked by Don Hanna of Valentine, a member of the State Advisory Highway Commission. He called it "undemocratic" because it didn't take into account what the people in the area want.

Whether Hanna will renew his attack at the next commission meeting on Monday, Jan. 25, remained to be seen. There were indications that some Custer County residents were none too happy with Hanna's assertion that the State Highway Department should be black-topping US 83 north of Theford instead of re-paving State 2 northwest of Anselmo. Hanna had stated that if residents of his district had anything to say about which road would be chosen, the Theford location would get priority.

Also scheduled for the commission's determination is a dispute over which route the State Highway Department should choose in relocating State 3 between Tecumseh and Crab Orchard in Johnson County.

Res said he has had numerous letters from towns worried about whether their road will be on the trunk highway system fixed by the commission. Deciding upon such a 6,500 mile system is one of the duties assigned to the commission by the Legislature. It promises to be a headache.

Governor Assailed

Speaking of headaches, Gov. Robert Crosby had several of his own.

After refusing to change his two-year highway program to include a stretch of US 83 near his home town of North Platte, the governor found himself sharply criticized by the North Platte Telegraph-Bulletin. The newspaper inquired editorially as to whether North Platte was being penalized for having a native son as governor.

Crosby explained that he had thought some of including the Maywood to Wellfleet section in his program. But he said the Highway Department told him this would violate the whole idea of building roads strictly on engineering necessity. He said that on the basis of principle he decided against changing his already settled program.

But this was not the only arrow aimed Crosby's way.

Howard Kine of Sutton, publisher of the Clay County News, published an article detailing Crosby's personal property tax return which he filed in Lincoln County in 1953. King said that it would appear to him that $613 worth of personal property was a low amount for a person in the governor's position to possess.

The governor then bared many details of his personal life in an unusual interview with the press. He said the truth of the matter was that he had spent much of his money in politics and was only in moderate financial circumstances.

"If it is wrong to be poor, then so 'be it," remarked the governor. He added that there is comfort in the New Testament for those who are poor.

Crosby detailed how his wife had had only a plain gold band he had bought her while he was still in law school. So after his election to the governorship in November, 1952, he said he "splurged" and bought her two diamond rings—one engagement and the other wedding.

He said that he and his wife sold almost all of their furniture before leaving North Platte because they wouldn't need it in the completely-furnished governor's mansion in Lincoln.

Crosby said he had made an honest return and would stand by it.

Publisher King had also questioned Crosby's listing three rings at $175. But at the request of a Lincoln newspaper, the governor had the rings professionally appraised.

The Lincoln jeweler said that the two diamond rings and Crosby's law class ring cost approximately $250 when new. But the jeweler said only $135 altogether could be obtained from them now.

In making a personal property return the taxpayer is required to list what he could get for the article on the assessment date. This indicated that the governor's return was about $40 more honest than the law required.

"Flamboyant Publicity"

Crosby also faced a charge by Lancaster County Attorney Frederick Wagner that his Operation Honesty is only a "flamboyant publicity campaign" to distract the public's attention from the real problems of taxation. Operation Honesty is a campaign to encourage citizens to make complete tax returns.

The governor replied: "It is apparent that Terry Carpenter has another disciple."

He referred to attacks by State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who has been a continual critic of the Crosby administration. Carpenter recently said of Operation Honesty, "It stinks."

Wagner has been mentioned as a possible candidate for state

Change of Tactics

On the education scene State Sen. Glenn Cramer of Albion made the suggestion that a change in tactics in reorganization of school districts might be in order.

Cramer said the emphasis should continue on redistricting elementary school districts. But he said maybe high school redistricting should be dropped for the time being.

The Albion legislator is chairman of a Legislative Council committee studying this problem. He said his committee is learning that all too often some small town is using redistricting to bolster up a high school which is too small to be good. Cramer said these small communities are taking advantage of this program to bolster up their dying towns.

"But this defeats the purpose. When they redistrict they bring in more territory but no more pupils. The pupils in the districts brought in by reorganization have been attending the high school anyway," Cramer said.

The trouble with the small high schools is not enough pupils so there can be vocational agriculture and other worthwhile programs, Cramer explained. He said that maybe high school redistricting should be dropped and a minimum of 40 to 50 pupils per high school imposed.

RECOVERS $280.00 BRACELET
COLOMBO, Ceylon—Lady Gardner, wife of Sr. Chittampalam Gardner, a Colombo film magnate, dropped a diamond and emerald bracelet worth $28,000 from her arm as she stepped from a motor launch to board a ship in the harbor. Divers were employed to probe the depths of the harbor. The diver, who found the bracelet, received a $30 reward.

BAKER, Mont. — Seeing his little brother, Craig, 2, slip on the edge of a 15-foot deep cess-pool and start to fall in, Carter Schye, 6, made a desperate grab. He caught Craig's arms and held on until his parents answered his screams.
