Chickens Will Continue to Be Profitable Here
Tender young chickens for broiling or frying will continue plentiful throughout July. These are suggested by the University of Nebraska's extension nutrition specialist, Ethel Dieckrichsen, as good buys for outdoor barbecues, for fried chicken to heap high on picnic tables, or for freezing.

Fryers and broilers weighing 2 1/2 to 4 pounds live weight and 10 to 12 weeks old are most desirable for freezing. There will be less discoloration around the bones of frozen chicken if it is bled completely and quickly when it is killed. Use water from 138 to 140 degrees for scalding. Hotter water will cook the inner layer of skin and may cause off-flavors.

As soon as the feathers are plucked and the body heat has left, the chicken may be cut up and packaged. Chicken may be cut in pieces, quarters, or halves. To cut chicken in half, split the back with a sharp knife or kitchen scissors. The back-bone may be removed for easier packaging. Cut down center front to remove the keel bone.

Wrap chicken in meal-sized packages for freezing. Plastic bags, or moisture vapor-proof wrapping such as laminated paper or foil may be used. Wrap gizzards, liver and heart separately and tuck inside the package. This will prevent discoloration. Exclude as much air as possible when wrapping. An easy way to do this with plastic bags is to dip the chicken filled bag in a bucket of tepid water being careful not to get any water inside the bag. Label the package and freeze at once.

Turkey Crop May Reach Record High
The latest United States Department of Agriculture reports on the production of turkey poult and the number of breeders tested indicate that the 1954 crop may set a new record high.

According to these reports the January and February hatch of heavy breed poult was 19 per cent more than a year ago, and the production of light breed poult was up 62 per cent. Although only a small part of the poult hatches come in January and February, if this trend continues through the rest of the hatching season, the 1954 crop will probably top the record high of 60 million birds produced in 1952.

Latin-American industry is slowing down, a survey finds. Pine seedlings are a major crop in the South.

Young Attends 3-Day Convention Of Auctioneers
Rex Young, Plattsmouth auctioneer and a director of the Nebraska Auctioneers Association, attended the three-day convention of the National Auctioneers Association at Omaha last week.

The convention opened Thursday running through Friday. Featured during the three days was election of officers, addresses by Governor Robert Crosby and former Congressman Harry Coffey, along with reports of Auctioneer committees.

Three hundred auctioneers from throughout the United States registered for the annual convention, and picked Indianapolis for the 1955 annual meeting.

Recognition was paid to those members traveling the greatest distance to attend the annual affair, to the oldest active salesman and for other distinctions.

Among the 300 auctioneers attending were five from Canada.

Hruska Will Tour State On Campaign

Rep. Roman L. Hruska, of Omaha, announced today he plans to visit every section of Nebraska between the adjournment of Congress and November to get acquainted with Republican Party workers and Nebraskans generally.

Hruska has been selected by the Republican State Central Committee as the party's choice to serve the four years of the late Senator Hugh Butler's unexpired term.

Announcing his plans in a letter to GOP party workers, Hruska emphasized that the campaign will be "vigorous and spirited."

"With a lot of hard work on the part of all Republican candidates and with the united and loyal support of many right-thinking Nebraskans," he wrote, "we can be earnestly confident of the Republican victory which means so much for the continued progress of the kind of America which we love and prize so highly."

Hruska said he will devote his every effort and energy to back up the confidence placed in him by his party.

"I know that Nebraska is large and that the time is limited," the Congressman explained, "but I will do my best to call on as many party workers and as many other Nebraskans as possible."

Hruska called Senator Butler's death a "grievous loss to America."

"While he faithfully served the entire Republic which he loved so well, he was most active and best loved in his own State," Hruska told the workers. "He befriended thousands upon thousands and he was a loyal friend of everyone."

Tests Show Fertilizer on Oats Beneficial
The best plots of oats at the Outstate Testing plots on the farm of John Krula, eight miles north of Schuyler, were fertilized with both nitrogen and phosphate says Dr. M. D. Weldon, extension agronomist at the College of Agriculture.

The results of fertilizer on four varieties of oats—Nemaha, Clinton, Marion, and Missouri 0-205—were observed. The fertilizers applications of nitrogen and phosphate separately and together, and also a complete fertilizer carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Alfalfa was planted with the oats and made a good stand.

The superphosphate was drilled in with the oats giving the best results, and treated with both nitrogen and the phosphate. The nitrogen fertilizer was broadcast after seeding, at the rate of 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Soil tests, taken last spring, showed the soil to need phosphate for best results with small grain and legumes. The soil was acid and in need of liming for best results with legumes. Mr. Krula has been using lime in recent years, where soil tests show it is needed.

The results of the 1953 fertilizer tests on oats and barley are published in Outstate Testing Circular 32, obtainable at any county extension agent's office. The circular shows recommended fertilizers for these crops.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe York and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Stewart and son left Friday night for a two-week vacation in the East. They will include New York on their eastern trip.

JOINT AIR MANEUVERS
American and Canadian airmen and civilian volunteers joined together to "fight invaders" from the north in a massive air defense training maneuver. Heavy bombers from the United States and B-24 air defense commands participated in simulated attacks. The number of planes and personnel involved was secret, but the exercise was described as the largest air operation yet held on the American continent.

By JAMES C. OLSON, Superintendent STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The first paper published in Nebraska Territory—the Nebraska Palladium for July 15, 1854—devoted almost two columns to a description of the first Fourth of July celebration held in the territory. It may be appropriate at this time to reproduce a part of that description. The editor reported:

"We never had the satisfaction of spending this interesting day more pleasantly than upon this occasion. The Star-Spangled Banner was hoisted at 12:00 o'clock; after which a salute was fired in succession for each State, and the Great Territory of Nebraska. Every countenance was animated with pleasure, and radiant with anticipation of the future glory and greatness of the beautiful place where they were assembled."

"The assemblage met near the Indian Agency under the broad canopy of heaven, and seemed to have hearts as expansive as the great scene of nature in which they were situated."

"We noticed one feature in the moral character of these 'Nebraskians,' which afforded us more than ordinary pleasure. This feature was not merely visible, but prominent, and unmistakable. It was the spirit of toleration—the all embracing spirit of human brotherhood—a disposition not only to live and let live, but to help live—a disposition to build on a foundation more lasting than time, and broad enough to embrace the very principle needed in the development of social, intellectual and moral progress. If this continues to be the ruling spirit here, the people will be as much distinguished for moral greatness and beauty, as the country is great and beautiful."

Following this panegyric the editor reported the proceedings of the day, consisting of the adoption of a series of resolutions and the hearing of innumerable toasts. Among the resolutions were the following:

"Resolved, That Nebraska is now open for settlement, and that we will do all in our power to promote the interests, develop the resources, and secure the early settlement of our exceedingly fertile country."

"Resolved, That in the formation of our institutions and laws, we will cherish the memories of those philanthropists to whom we are indebted for the liberty, prosperity and happiness, we as a nation enjoy."

"Resolved, that Bellevue being the most central and commanding
