Bible Comment:

God's Blessing Depends Not on Wealth, Poverty

THE rich young man who came to Jesus inquiring the way to eternal life has had an unenviable place in religious history.

Though we do not know his name, the Gospel incident has given him anonymous fame, and at the same time brought upon him much harsher judgment than he would seem to have deserved.

In correctness of life he was undoubtedly remarkable, for Jesus loved him and offered him a place in His small circle of immediate followers.

We should view the young man with a compassionate sadness, remembering that he went away sad, never again to enjoy the great possessions that had kept him from the greatest glory and treasure of all.

Other rich men who heard Christ's call, either from Jesus, Himself, or in the early days of the Christian church, made a better response than the rich young man.

But Christianity, despite the fact of some rich disciples and the "saints in Caesar's household," seems to have had its rise chiefly among the poor.

This association of Christianity with poverty, and the fact that later saints renounced wealth and worldliness to lead lives of devotion and service, has often led to a glorification of poverty that is not justified by the facts.

The blessings of poverty are often sung by those who have never known what it is to be poor.

Moreover, Christianity was built upon the heritage of the Old Testament, with a philosophy of abundance.

It was only when material prosperity led to unrighteousness and forgetfulness of God, the giver of all, that the prophets gave warning.

There is no blessing in either wealth or in poverty, but only in the blessedness that God bestows.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

That true happiness is to be found through understanding the spiritual laws which govern the universe including man will be brought out at Christian Science Services Sunday in the lesson-sermon entitled "Soul."

The spiritual nature of happiness is set forth in the following passage which will be among those read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Soul has infinite resources with which to bless mankind, and happiness would be more readily attained and would be more secure in our keeping if sought in Soul. Higher enjoyments alone can satisfy the cravings of immortal man. We cannot circumscribe happiness within the limits of personal sense." (60:29-2).

The prophet Isaiah's promise of peace and joy to those who spiritually understand God will be included in the readings from the Bible (Isaiah 55:12): "For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands."

There is no blessing in either wealth or in poverty, but only in the blessedness that God bestows.
