CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES
How spiritual understanding of man's scientific unity with God overcomes fear and establishes harmony will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.
The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement" includes the following passages from the Bible (Psalms 51:15-17):

"O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it; thou delightest not in burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."
From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following selections will also be read (202:3): "The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done."
The Golden Text is from I John (2:1): "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."

Bible Comment: Jesus Taught Essence of True Humility

WHAT did Jesus mean by humility? There is no doubt that Jesus did teach humility and that he found it so hard to instill the lesson of it into his disciples that He stooped to menial tasks such as washing their feet to make the lesson plain.

It might be said that a person who is truly humble never greets or makes a parade or profession of his humility. He may be none the less humble because he stands erect, has a keen sense of his integrity of life and purpose and puts a proper value upon himself as a person and individual.

Jesus stressed this value of the individual as much as He stressed the need of humility. True humility is not in any sense self-deprecation.

It might be said that when people are proud they are usually proud of the wrong things. They are proud of their birth or wealth, for example. It is a fortunate thing for them to have been born into a great or good family, but after all, it is a fortunate circumstance with which they have nothing to do.

So, in the life of the soul the humble open mind and heart are the gateways to the knowledge of God and the discovery of His will.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State for twelve years in the Cabinet of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and whom Roosevelt once called the father of the United Nations, celebrated his 83rd birthday on October 2nd. Mr. Hull retired from the Cabinet on October 2, 1944 for what he thought was a rest, but he never went back to work. He is at present a patient in the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md.

JOURNALISMS

Our apologies to John L. Foster of Union and a sincere thanks for calling to our attention a matter that should have been compiled with long ago. That is the listing of addresses in police court and courthouse notes. Mr. Foster tells us he has been embarrassed more than once by the elimination of this procedure. In the future this newspaper will make every attempt to secure home addresses in order that persons can be properly identified.

A nice letter from our friend Frank M. Bestor at Kansas City. Mr. Bestor corrected us on some of our early history and a few other matters in which he set us straight. He forbid us to publish his letter but he'll certainly forgive us for reprinting in our own words a few points of interest contained therein.

In commending us for publishing so much news, we're chided for not telling more about the older folks, their health, etc. We'll try to do better. And for your information, Frank, Fred Rea is up and going places again, even a few days at Consumers. Fred will like this, "He's a very popular person in Plattsmouth and adjoining counties. He's just one of the many that has been in similar positions." To which we say "Amen."

We were pleased to learn that Searle S. Davis was the man who came up with the idea of a corn festival or some sort of fall celebration. We're glad to know that. The committee has been looking for a chairman for 1955.

He adds, "Another correction you need to make is that there were no homesteads east of Weeping Water. All was pre-empted to men of military service and my grandfather bought such farms around Mynard in those days. The first homestead in Nebraska after passage of that law, was out near Beatrice. My parents were early settlers, with mother much the earlier as she arrived with her parents, Wm. B. Porter's, in September, 1856. Grandfather was one of the vigilantes that rounded up the Johnson Gang and he never would tell what they did to them or with them.

My mother told me many stories of life on the plains and freighting between Plattsmouth and Denver. On their trips they always had many cattle and on the last trip they made they lost 40 thousand head to the Indians." Frank is located at 205 East 66th St., Kansas City, Mo.

This isn't pioneer history that follows, but it is of an earlier day than most of us care to recall. We found it on one of our news reporter's desks here Tuesday, stole it and included it here. Most of our readers will know who wrote it—we'll just say her initials are MVD.

"Saturday night ain't what it used to be! Time was when Dad would pull in early from the field on Saturday afternoon and boldly announce to Mom he would be ready to go in to get the groceries in about an hour. This meant a lot of preparation in so short notice—water was to be drawn from the well, heated and poured into the old galvanized tub, and 5 kids to be washed and scrubbed—then fed. Poor Mom she hardly had time to look in the mirror to see if her hat was on straight.

"The main reason in going so early was to get a choice parking space on Main—You could park all Saturday night long for nothing. Mom would set out to spend her $10.00 for food—chat with neighboring farm women about dress patterns, the new minister at the church, or the price of eggs. We kids were given our allowances (this was in the days of depression). My allowance was a dime—unless I should see Dad talking to a bunch of farmers and I'd just blurt right out and ask for more—he seldom refused in front of his friends. It was a hard decision whether to buy two five-cent hamburgers or a good red rubber ball for ten cents. The aroma of hamburgers usually won out.

"We kids were left to play about the car or perhaps make a walk or three about town with some friends. I remember one Saturday night in particular, a friend of mine asked my mother if I might go with her to the public library to return some books. I prayed softly under my breath that she would refuse her— I just knew the library was off the beaten path of the main drag. How different kids are now. They go everywhere alone now. Some even do their own baby sitting, while the folks go out for an evening of pleasure.

"About 10 o'clock Dad would move closer in to the car, and ask Mom to round up the kids so we could head home. Most the time I fell asleep in my sis' lap, but always managed to wake up enough to partake of the store bought cookies, lemonade, candies, bananas or whatever extra special treats that had been purchased in town.

"Off to bed to dream of our experiences in town on Saturday night. Thinking when we'd ever go in again. Maybe Dad might need repairs about Wednesday or maybe it wouldn't be until he'd come in from the field early next Saturday afternoon."
Pretty good for a first attempt.

GENERAL GRUENTHER
General Alfred M. Gruenther, Supreme Allied Commander of the NATO forces in Europe, who is now visiting in this country, recently declared that the United States must improve its techniques and ideological warfare. Unless this nation can increase its power to influence world opinion and thereby preserve the unity of free nations, it faces the risk of seeing the Soviet Union pick "us off one by one," the General declared.
