New Lives Goal Dimes March Director Says

Making new lives for polio victims is a major goal of the March of Dimes, now in the second week of its drive for $64,000,000 in polio-fighting funds, according to Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

"From the time a polio patient is first diagnosed, skilled hands and wise heads are at his bedside to save a life and return the patient to normal living," Dr. Van Riper said. "For this, most patients need financial aid from the March of Dimes."

National Foundation research and professional education programs constantly provide new knowledge and trained personnel, he explained. The eventual conquest of paralytic polio is the goal and much progress has been made, but polio still cripples, he said.

More Getting Rehabilitation
"New treatment techniques, involving physical therapy and orthopedic surgery, plus improved self-help devices can give mobility to many paralyzed arms and legs," he declared.

A survey of 34,377 polio patients admitted or re-admitted to hospitals in 1954 showed that 6,298 of them had come back for this purpose, he added. Reports of admissions and re-admissions to hospitals during the first nine months of 1954 list 5,577 patients in this category out of a total of 25,097 admissions—more than one out of five.

Parallel Efforts
Describing the goals of the National Foundation, Dr. Van Riper said: "While the prevention of polio is our final objective, provision of the best available care and treatment must parallel our efforts to control it."

"We must provide the kind of treatment that will allow polio patients to return to their homes prepared and able to take an active part in the life of their community. You might say we must treat the whole person, not just the disease."

March of Dimes aid is essential, he declared. More dimes are vitally needed now to help thousands of polio patients realize their potentialities.

The campaign will continue until Jan. 31.

Change Pictures If Unnoticed Says Nebraska U. Expert

LINCOLN—If you have been completely unaware of the pictures in your home lately, say it's time for a change, says Magdalen Pfister, extension home furnishings specialist at the University of Nebraska.

"Pictures should give pleasure to you and your family, reflecting your artistic tastes and interests. If they are unnoticed by family members, they certainly cannot be achieving their intended purpose, according to the specialist.

Pictures should "fit the mood" of the room in which they are placed—whether formal or more casual. Living room pictures should have general appeal. A picture placed in the dining room must also have general appeal, but may be gayer with brighter color than those in the living room. Bedroom pictures give an opportunity for a wider variety of subjects than any other room in the house. Here can be placed the framed photographs, the religious pictures which bring a feeling of rest, and the gay colorful prints which may be used as the color key to the room.

The picture should be the center of interest and its frame must complement it rather than dominate it. The hanging of a picture is also of importance to display the picture to best advantage. Place pictures at eye level for your enjoyment and in close relation to other pieces of furniture.

Pictures can do one of two things for your home, says the specialist. They can help make your rooms more colorful, interesting and pleasurable, or they can just hang, creating no particular effect or serving no definite purpose.
