In 60 Days All Over U. S. A. Gardeners Will Get to Work

Among the 75 or more "weeks" now more or less publicized in this country, why is there no "National Garden Week"?

The answer to this question is found in the sun, whose rays move north and south over the surface of the globe, bringing the changing temperatures and varying lengths of day which cause the four seasons.

In the United States, planting time starts in Florida two months earlier than in Minnesota, so there is no single week which could be celebrated as the beginning of the outdoor garden season throughout the country.

To wake up gardeners throughout America, the American Horticultural Council is sponsoring an alarm clock schedule that will begin sounding in the south and follow the sun as it travels northward thawing out the ground, and releasing the energies which winter has kept locked up.

On the basis of U. S. Department of Agriculture records, the country is divided into zones, in each of which the average date of the last killing frost in spring is approximately the same.

One month before this date is selected as the time for "Planting Time" in that zone. Seeds of hardy varieties may be sown; hardy plants may be transplanted; tender varieties may be started under protection, and merchants of garden goods should makethese available to their customers.

Since it is considered impractical to divide a state into several zones, each state has been considered as a unit and assigned a date for the beginning of "Planting Time" which represents the average climate of the whole state, although it may not be exactly right for either the earliest or latest sections of the state area. The dates assigned to the various states on this basis are as follows:

January 1 — Florida.
February 1 — Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, California, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas.

February 15 — Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia.

March 1 — Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

The Men's Garden clubs of America, National Garden Writers' Association, and many other horticultural organizations have endorsed the Planting Time programme and urge that all home gardeners join in observing it.
