Buckin' Horses Are Coming

The reason the bucking horses painted on Plattsmouth store windows are so real looking is that the man who painted them used to sit in the middle of one of those sunfishin' sons-of-a-guns. He is H. O. Bowen of Rock Port, Mo., at left in this photo, a former rodeo bronc rider now retired after an injury, and presently a horse trainer and sign painter. His signs herald the coming of the second annual rodeo at Plattsmouth's show grounds for three nights, starting Wednesday.—(Journal Photo).
