Schreiner Drug PICTURE TALK

We have some really exciting news about color film for all of you who use miniature cameras.

It's the fast new 35mm and 828 Kodak Ektachrome Film, which is just about three times faster than any other outdoor color film you've previously been loading into your miniature camera. And do you know what this extra speed can mean to you? It will make it possible for you to take your pictures under far less favorable outdoor lighting conditions than you've ever dared try before.

Besides giving you a wider choice of lighting possibilities, the new film allows you to "stop" more motion in your pictures — to snap your subjects in action. This will be good news for many of you who like to snap sports and action.

As with other color films, we have this new one in both outdoor and indoor types, and it may be used with either flash or flood when supplementary lighting is desired. Stop in and get a roll for your camera. After you've shot your pictures, return the film to us for processing just as you do the black-and-white film you shoot.
