world was poised on the edge of what appeared to be inevitable second World War, and was. As August had ushered in World War I in 1914, in August, 1939, the world focused its attention on Nazi Germany.

At that time Hitler had been in power only six years, but he had already built up a formidable military machine and was threatening to exact brutal revenge on Poland if his demands against that country were not met. Throughout the latter half of August, world peace hung by a thread and Hitler threatened to take action unless his demands were met immediately.

In the waning days of Auugust, the British proposed a plan for peaceful settlement of the Polish Corridor dispute, and Hitler-for a moment-hositated. He nostponed his invasion of Poland for sevand days but he get one ent as on!" emporary.

When Hitler became convinced that England and France would not bow to his demands against Poland but would only agree to help moderate the dispute and facilitate negotiations and some concessions, Hitler made up his mind to order the advance which touched off World War

That was just sixteen years ago this month. Actually, Hitler's troops crossed the border into Poland early on the morning of September 1st, though the plans and orders were issued in August. After the invasion began, only twenty-four days were required to crush the proud Polish Army whose soldiers resisted fiercely but were overwhelmed, surrounded and hopelessly outclassed.

The month of August, then, brings back memories of awesome years. World War II also ended in August-on August 14th—when Japan finally surrendered. Hitler had been disposed of in May, and the Nazis surrendered in May, 1945.

August, 1955, brings much for which Americans can be thankful. Prosperity, peace and general abundance are highlights on the American scene. The end of summer, 1955, approaches with many blessings and great optimism and hope of happiness for Americans.

Americans are looking forward to football games, hunting and fishing in the fall, to a holiday season and to many of the good things in life, made possible by record prosperity. For these things, Americans should say a prayer of thanks.

* * * DOING SOMETHING ABOUT FLOODS As a local man said Thursday about The Journal's flood control headline; "What do you mean floods?"

We'll agree that it is a little tough to get people interested in floods following a near two-month drought-but some of these days the rains will come again and they could come in torrents as they did back east and have come to this area in past years.

The flood program as approved by the City Council and prepared in co-operation with the Hope-Aikin Congressional Bill, is not a "spur of the moment" kind of planning. This plan, as presented, is one of several years study, not only by local committees, but following a complete survey and research by soil conservationists and watershed groups, all with many years experience in the handling of water

Plattsmouth for too many years has done little toward control of water, other than digging of a deeper ditch. Little effort has gone into holding water on the soil where it should be held and where it
