MONEY TO BURN

WHITBY, England — Wolf Pickering, city incinerator worker, who had just cracked a joke about never having seen money to burn, looked on the conveyor belt to the furnace and saw wads of bank rolls. Quickly, he switched the belt off and began a search, which yielded 70 pound bills, each worth $2.80, and a wallet with about 40 more. The money belonged to Edgar Baines whose wife had accidentally thrown his wallet out with the garbage.
