

Samuel C. Waugh, Plattsmouth Native, Is Honored at Doane

CRETE—Samuel Clark Waugh, president of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, D. C., received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree Monday from Doane College.

A native of Plattsmouth and associated with First Trust Co. of Lincoln for more than 40 years, Waugh has served on the Doane Board of Trustees since 1948.

A luncheon honoring Waugh was held after the convocation at which the degree was presented.

Waugh had served more than two years as Assistant Secretary of State for economic affairs.

In addressing the convocation, he said that in that position he had an intensive course of practical adult education in economics and government. Now that I have concluded my assignment with the Department of State, perhaps I may accept this, my only degree, as a diploma and as evidence that I have completed a most interesting phase of my education.

Waugh said it seemed to him that "we can see unmistakable instances where people and institutions are taking a broader view, identifying their own interests with the interests of others; in short, gaining more responsibility."

"Among the most dynamic institutions in society," he added, "are corporations and national governments."

Waugh spoke of government aid to other countries and a "parallel in the case of United States corporations," the amounts of money given to privately-endowed colleges and universities.

He said that never before have business firms taken such an interest in education and explained some reasons for the increase in grants to colleges.

Doane President Donald M. Typer said that Waugh, "is not only one of Nebraska's great citizens, but he has also won the distinction of being one of America's top citizens."

Suggesting "a word of caution" in connection with his comments on "a new atmosphere" in East-West relations, Waugh pointed out:

"Working earnestly toward a peaceful world does not mean acceptance of gross injustice, repression and subversion. Pleasant smiles do not mean that the peoples of the free world can relax their vigilance nor dismantle their programs of collective security against aggression.

The resolution of the problems," Waugh declared, "must fall upon the liberally-educated men and women of this and the coming generations."

Mrs. George Abel, formerly of Plattsmouth, a member of the Doane board of trustees, presided at the convocation luncheon program. She is a former U. S. Senator.

Three-Fourths School Heads New to Schools

Nearly three-fourths of Nebraska's school superintendents have less than five years tenure in the same community, reports The Nebraska Education Association.

More than a fourth—124 of them—are in a new community this fall, compared with last year's figure of approximately one-fifth in new communities.

Eighty-nine are in their second year, while 68 are starting their third year.

A total of 144 superintendents have tenures of five or more years in the same community—out of 448 listed in the new superintendent's directory of the Nebraska State Education Association.

Dean of the superintendents in point of service to one community is L. E. Lydiatt of Lodgepole, who is beginning his 34th year there.

Lydiatt after 36 years there, and E. N. Swett of South Sioux City who retired after 34 years. Only one other superintendent claims more than 30 years with the same community. This is C. L. Jones, who is marking his 32nd year at Minden.

Six superintendents claim 20 or more years in the same community. They are Allen P. Burkhardt, Norfolk, 25 years; E. M. Samuelson, Cody, 23; Harold K. Douthit, Curtis School of Agriculture, 23; K. R. Mitchell, Allen, 21; Glenn E. Miller, Lexington, 21; and Walter E. French, Stromberg, 20 years.

Forty-one superintendents have been with the same community between 10 and 20 years. T. I. Priest of Plattsmouth is in this category.
