LITTLE EVA could get away across the Missouri river as she did in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" if these lacy floating ice blocks would support her and she could jump far enough. But the crunch of blocks hitting shore rim ice near Plattsmouth told that the ice was cold and hard. In the background the Plattsmouth toll bridge and the gas line bridge. Earlier this winter the river has been nearly blocked by ice and at a low level. Now it has broken out into a swifter flow.—Journal Photo.
