BART SCANLAN ATTENDS DES MOINES MEETING

DES MOINES, Ia. — Bart Scanlan, Maytag dealer in Plattsburgh, heard Iowa Governor Leo Hoegh and Fred Maytag II, president of The Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa, speak at a meeting in Des Moines Jan. 24 of the top Maytag dealers in Iowa and bordering states in Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

LINCOLN—Seven Cass county 4-H leaders were among the 350 men and women in attendance at the annual 4-H Leader Training Conference held in Lincoln Jan. 25-28.
This was the third training conference to be held in the state during the past month. Scottsbluff and Norfolk were hosts to leaders from Western and North-eastern Nebraska.
Activities ranging from group discussions to workshop sessions were a part of the training received by the leaders. Discussions centered around club management problems, parent participation and health and safety programs for 4-H clubs.
Extension specialists from the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, directed the leaders in their workshop subject matter sessions. The specialists brought leaders up to date on project materials in animal husbandry, home living, foods, clothing, tractor, dairy, and rural electrification.
Two persons prominent on the national 4-H scene were highlighted speakers of the conference. Miss Fern Shipley, associate leader of 4-H Clubs and YMW with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Ty Thompson, service director of the citizen's group, National Committee on 4-H Club Work, spoke on subjects of leadership techniques. Other speakers during the conference were: Donald Novotny, 1955 International Farm Youth Exchange Delegate to India; Elton Lux, state extension leader of finance and personnel; Bill Lutes, extension safety specialist; Helen Becker, extension health education specialist; and W. V. Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture.
Leaders attending the conference from Cass county this year were Sterling Ingwerson, Plattsburgh; Richard Harmon, Weeping Water; Mrs. Albert Bose, Avoca; Mrs. Clarence Stohlman, Louisville; Mrs. John Johnson, Greenwood; Mrs. Harold Kellogg, Ashland; Mrs. Eugene Domingo.

Golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Hrasaky, Portland, Ore., was observed recently with a reception at their home, attended by some 65 friends. Anton Hrasaky and Anna Barbara Grebe were married Dec. 20, 1905, in Plattsburgh. They moved to Mitchell in 1917 where they farmed until going to Portland to live in 1934. Mr. Hrasaky did sheet metal work and is now retired. The Hrasaky's are the parents of five children: sons, George G. and Howard C., and daughters, Mrs. Robert E. Miller, Mrs. Harry H. Soli and Mrs. Pallo Nielsen. There are 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Clara Grebe, his sister, lives at Plattsburgh.
