How Nebraska Public Power System Produces Your Low-Cost Electricity

NPPS Combines Water and Steam Power for More Efficiency

Electricity is born in the throbbing turbines of a steam or diesel generating plant . . . or in the thundering rush of water through a hydro-electric plant.

With these power-generating giants, NPPS produces electricity for most of the electric retailers serving people in the Eastern two-thirds of Nebraska, excluding Omaha and vicinity.

You are using more electricity every year, so it is important for you to know how NPPS is meeting your power needs.

Here is what NPPS is doing to make sure there will always be plenty of low-cost power available when you flick the switch.

NEW KRAMER STEAM GENERATING PLANT near Bellevue has a capability of 120,000 kilowatts - more than enough to supply the needs of a city the size of Lincoln and Grand Island combined. Started in 1949, this giant now is the NPPS base-load plant and produces electricity at a cost among the lowest of any steam plant in the Mid-Continent region.
