Half Deaths Heart Disease In 20 Cities

More than half the people who die in 20 cities of Nebraska died of heart disease.

This was shown by statistics for 1954 in a special report prepared for the Nebraska Heart Association, now conducting a campaign for funds in Plattsmouth and other Nebraska communities.

Headed by Dr. L. S. Pucelik at Plattsmouth and former Governor Robert Crosby on the state level, the Association seeks to finance research on heart problems. Presently heart coin boxes have been placed in Plattsmouth places of business.

Wahoo has the highest percentage of heart deaths, 75 per cent, and Lexington the lowest, 24 per cent. The present report differs from the Bureau's regular report because it combines deaths due not only to the heart, but blood vessels as well.

These are the diseases being fought by the Heart Association, primarily hardening of arteries, high blood pressure and rheumatic heart disease.

Nest to Wahoo in the percentage of deaths due to heart and blood vessel diseases are Valentine 68 per cent, Fairbury and Holdrege 66 per cent, Wayne and York 65 per cent, Chadron 64 per cent, Broken Bow 63 per cent, Seward 62 per cent, Falls City and Columbus 61 per cent, Superior and Plattsmouth 60 per cent.

With 53 per cent are Omaha, Fremont, Kearney and McCook, Lincoln hits 55 per cent, Grand Island 52 per cent, Hastings 56 per cent, North Platte and Alliance 54 per cent, Beatrice 51 per cent, Norfolk 57 per cent. Cities with the lowest percentages are Lexington 24 per cent, Sidney 39 per cent, Schuyler 40 per cent, Bellevue 41 per cent, Ogallala and Nebraska City 42 per cent, South Sioux City, Cozad and Scottsbluff 43 per cent and Kimball 46 per cent.
