

Trout Season Opens Soon

Recent Tourney Recalls 'Devils' Greatest Team

Plattsmouth Blue Devils of 1920 didn't reach the state tourney at Lincoln this year, but they showed up well during the season and came as close as most of them in taking on Champion Falls City—and Collier—unanimous all-stater.

Recent play-offs recalled better years for old-timers in Plattsmouth, with most of them thinking about that team of 1920 that saw John Sattler, Blue Devil jumping and basket shooting center, backed up by Gus Brubacker, guard, Ernest Schubeck, forward, Joe McCarthy, guard, Carl J. Schneider, forward, with Adolph Hollis, Raymond Bockmeyer and Harold Mullis, acting as relief men.

Schubeck, Bockmeyer and Mullis have passed on to their reward, but surviving team members can recall two or three seasons that saw Plattsmouth at the top of the heap in East Nebraska, defeating Falls City, Beatrice, Nebraska City, Omaha South and some other big names by decisive tallies.

"Mr. Basketball" McBride, World-Herald sports scribe, in his column following the state tourney at Lincoln reminisced with Gov. Vic Anderson, a standing guard on the Havelock teams of 1919 and '20. Gov. Vic, then a lad of 135 pounds, recalled jumping center with John Sattler, Plattsmouth ace "considered one of the tourney's better jumpers."

They both now laugh over a trick Vic used in improving his jumping abilities. Anderson placed one hand on Sattler's shoulder and with the other tapped the ball. Against the rules, but like now, a good trick if you got away with it. He held Sattler down long enough that Havelock won the final Tourney game in Class C by 22-14.

But it wasn't always so during season play. Plattsmouth won over Havelock in two games prior to the tourney. In 1921 the Devils took them on twice, swamping them the first time 68 to 3—Havelock never made a point in the second half. Next time they journeyed to Havelock and beat them 30 to 19. In 1919 it was the same. Gov. Anderson helped his team mates go down 67 to 8. We don't know what happened to the Platters in Tournament play.

Outside of basketball, that 1920 team didn't do so bad either. It produced two bankers, C. J. Schneider, President Plattsmouth State, Adolph Hollis, President Stock Yards National at Omaha; a store owner, Gus Brubacker, Murray; a railroad, Joe McCarthy, long with the C & Q in a high position, and Sattler, the Plattsmouth Mortician.

The men's town team included Morris Muenchau, Melvin Adams, Sup't. Schmieding, Doyle Gump, Melvin Doran, Ralph Ransford, Howard Root, Don Schmidt, Harold Wall, Kieth and Doyle Trumble.

The farm team included Sony Weyers, Junior Johnson, Melvin Adams, Orin Lanning, Forest Hardnock, Clyde Althouse, Gerald Dowling and Gerald Hall.

The proceeds will go to the senior class educational tour of Chicago.

The Republic of Indonesia will buy surplus farm commodities worth $96,000,000 from this country.

Special to the Journal
Trout fishing in eastern Nebraska will begin March 31st at the Louisville and Fremont state recreation grounds when more than 4,000 rainbow trout are stocked by the Nebraska game commission.

For many eastern Nebraskans this is the occasion for the first fishing trip of the season. All of the yearling trout stocked at these recreation areas are raised at the Rock Creek hatchery near Benkelman.

First stocking this spring was at Elm Creek, located east of Red Cloud in Webster county. Over 2,000 rainbow trout were stocked there Feb. 24th. The same amount of the gaudy rainbows are being stocked this month.

Later the northern trout streams are scheduled to receive stockings of both rainbows and brown trout.

Fishery workers at Game Commission hatcheries are busy getting truckloads of rainbow trout stocked for the coming fishing pressure. For the most part, Nebraska streams and lakes have little natural reproduction of trout. If you are to have trout fishing maintained from year to year, periodic stocking is a necessity.

This type of fishing, maintained by regular stocking, is called "put and take" fishing. It is the only way of keeping trout fishing in nearly sub-standard waters that don't have expensive gravel-bottomed spawning areas.

The cost of raising yearling trout for stocking is placed at 35½ cents by the fishery division. Add one penny per fish for transportation to streams and you have total cost of about 37 cents per trout stocked.

If you are skilled, or lucky enough to catch a daily bag limit of seven trout, you have made a pretty good return on your fishing permit cost of $1.50 actually profiting by about $1.05. Of course most fishermen don't look at their fishing from a "dollars and cents" viewpoint. The mere fact that we get outdoors and find that all-important relaxation and companionship with friends and family are worth more to most of us than the financial side of the picture.

Yet, as fishermen it is important that we understand the financial side of "put and take" fishing for trout. After all, that is the only way we can keep trout fishing in most waters of the state.

Bruning Takes Win Volleyball At Peru State

PERU — Bruning high school's spikers defeated the defending champion Burr high school team 25-13 to cop trophy in the ninth annual Peru State Invitational Volleyball tournament for High School Girls Wednesday night.

It was "sweet revenge" for Bruning, since the only other time the team had entered the tourney, in 1951, they lost to Burr in the quarter-finals. Burr high school has dominated the tournament for the past four years, winning top spot during that time.

Murdock outlasted Verdon in a double overtime contest 23-21. Score was tied 14 all at the end of regular play, with the first overtime ending 19-19. The double overtime was the first in the history of the tournament.

In the semi-finals played Wednesday afternoon, Burr defeated Murdock 21-17, and Bruning won from Verdon 24-17.

Thirty-two teams were entered in the tournament which started Monday. Of the top four seeded teams, only Burr reached the finals. Other seeded teams were Panama, Douglas and Bennet.

Murdock defeated Verdon 23-21 in the semi-finals after defeating Snyder 53-11, Homesville 26-7, and Panama 18-16.
