"Quick 'n Fun" Time Offers Fun For the Whole Family: Try it!

By Margaret Dingman
Journal Women's Editor

Warm weather means it's "Quick 'n Fun" time in the kitchen — time to spend less time around the pots and pans and more time enjoying the sunshine or the early evening air.

You'll find your family will enjoy the light but nourishing lunches at suppertime the best. Dad will have extra time to water the lawn or hoe in the garden, and the kids will have some after-supper-fun before bedtime.

Mother, you could really go all out with paper plates and cups, they'll forgive you—and be out of the kitchen in jig time.

Such a Quick 'n Fun menu could include sizzling hot dogs roasted on the open fire, potato salad or chips, corn on the cob and relishes. For dessert why not have pudding (the prepared mix) with cookies or ice cream and cookies. The drink could be iced tea or milk.

Another menu that is tasty, and does not call for an open fire is Onion Burgers. This can be prepared ahead of time, and just heated at the last moment while toasting the buns.

Onion Burgers
1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons flour
1 can condensed onion soup
or substitute tomato soup
8 buns, toasted

Brown meat in a heavy skillet, stirring to separate meat clumps. Sprinkle flour over meat; stir until well mixed with meat. Add onion soup or tomato soup; cook until thoroughly heated and slightly thickened. Serve on hot toasted buns. This is enough "filling" for 8 sandwiches; garnish with pickle relish if desired.
