Pure silk peau de soie fashioned the bride's Cathedral-length gown. French lace flower medallions sprayed with pearl and rhinestone beading encrusted the sculptured shell décolletage and also created the minute sleeves. The smooth cameo dipping in an elongated circular mold, accentuated the extreme lavishness of the silk skirt which was traced with an overlay band of silk tucking sprayed with the jeweled medallion motif. A Juliet cap of silk appliqued with miniature lace flowers caught the sheer folds of her train-length veiling. She completed her gown with wrist gloves of white kid and carried a bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley. She wore diamond and pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Miss Shirley Owens, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She was gowned in a sheath-styled dress of white silk. Soft folds tapering to a portrait line framed the shoulders and the slim-lined skirt was dramatized by a flare of silk overskirt studded with the jeweled lace motif. Other bridal attendants included the Misses Janet Schenken, Omaha, Joan Norris, Dorothy Ann Kunkel, and Marlene Noble, Weeping Water. They wore identical dresses of matching white silk. The princess mode of the gowns was accented by the V necklines draped to side emphasis and sprinkled with the lace floral design. The smoothly gored skirts, which swept into back gathered fullness, were highlighted by cerise satin cummerbunds fashioned into back sash bows. Cornets of silk caught with brow veils completed the danseuse-length dresses and they carried sprays of Happy Day roses.
