Murdock Postman Explains Mailing

MURDOCK — Addressing mail parcels on more than one side is discouraged by post office officials, according to Verl Brunkow, acting postmaster at Murdock.

Quoting from the "Postal Bulletin," Mr. Brunkow added, "The practice sometimes causes parcels to be rated postage due before it is discovered the postage has been affixed to another side."

"The markings on parcels sent as special handling, special delivery, insured or COD mail are likely to be overlooked and the special treatment not given."

The preceding applies to all parcels with the exception of baby chick shipments, the letter continued.
