JOURNALisms

Peace will not come from charters or peace treaties, but only when the peoples of the world are willing to live and let live on an equal basis. That's the one big reason why we hate to see our government continue to spread American taxpayers dollars over the globe.

In our recently concluded trip through the great southwest, we saw plenty of evidence that much of this money could better be spent in soil conservation work in the dry and parched lands of western Kansas, Oklahoma, and the great plains of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. Water storage facilities, plus agricultural practices to reduce erosion is the only answer to an area where less than a quarter of an inch of rain has fell in more than a year.

Thousands of acres of once lush grazing land is bare but for cactus, sage brush and a few buzzards. Only in a few areas are cattle found grazing where a few years ago they could be counted in the thousands. Prolonged drought is taking its toll, not only in the ranch areas but in the towns and villages where numerous empty buildings stare as you drive through, although the larger cities seem to be bustling with business and continued expansion.

We, therefore, could only rejoice with them rather than complain that we drove through heavy rains, slush and some snow in New Mexico, Arizona, and California, during our only escape from this emporium in nearly a year.

We did find some sunshine for a few days during our absence, but but on the whole, weather was little better than that which we had left in eastern Nebraska. Of course, we are not speaking of temperatures that arrived here following our departure and that greeted us on our return. These sub-zero readings can send a chill down one's spine, but so can those on the west coast when the mercury gets down to around 50 degrees. In spite of the six below reading the morning this is being written, there's an invigorating ozone in the chill air that puts a spring in your step, although those with outdoor plumbing will probably not agree with us.

Miss Ida Patton writes in to inquire if Flipper Fanny, our dainty little contour twister, also took off on a winter vacation. All we know is that Fanny called in to say she would be away for a few weeks, telling us that a gal just cannot keep up with her civic activities among the younger set when the thermometer reads to 20 below, the wooded drives are knee deep with snow, and one has a morbid fear of carbon monoxide.

However, we are happy to forward Miss Patton's dedicated prose to Fanny at Las Vegas in care of the Flamingo where we're sure we saw this wise-cracking little package making the rounds of gambling tables, bars and fat bank rolls—with moderate to phenomenal success.

Titled "Fly Around Fanny," Miss Patton's verse follows:
Now, dear Fly-around Fanny's the busiest girl in her fitting from hither to yon; as she twitters at this and she twitters at that, she's an artist in mull and chiffon.

Then she finds that the curtain, which you have just fixed, must be all out of line, don't you see; so she twitches it here, and she twitches it there, until it's twitched as it just ought to be.

Then the lamp she must move just a tenth of an inch, for it's light must be right and just so; and that tenth of an inch is important you see, just the difference between weal and woe. Then the antimacasser comes in for a pull, or a push or a twist or a twirl; and the davenport cushions get patted a bit by this flittery, fluttery girl.

Now, do you have a Fly-around Fanny at home, who can put everything in its place? If you have, don't disturb her, but let her keep on, and in fact, offer her an embrace.

For its better for neatness and order to be than for discord and error to reign; so your Fly-around Fanny deserves an embrace and a kiss, so just kiss her again.

Thanks, Miss Patton. But, at our age, we'll give her just one of those fatherly little pecks. —RRF.

Sarpy County Fears Inroads Of Omaha Plans

Residents of Bellevue and Sarpy county have been stirred by plans reported from Lincoln that a measure may be introduced in the unicameral to set aside 5,000 acres to be surveyed to build a state park extending from the south limits of Omaha, to the north limits of Bellevue along the banks of the Missouri would extend 300 feet east of Bellevue boulevard to the Missouri River.

Eastern Sarpy county residents express fear that "too much land is already off the tax list due to state parks, military bases and public power plants". The viewpoint of the supporters of the move is that the land would also serve to create a greater area for the expansion of manufacturing plants in the greater Omaha area. It is urged that this area might serve as docking facilities in future years, when Chicago is opened to shipping from overseas, through the St. Lawrence waterway and great Lakes, give this part of the west a great advantage in use of the Missouri River traffic to St. Louis and thence to Chicago.

This suggestion also opens the possibilities of Missouri River points being a part of this shipping program, and would also include Plattsmouth, Nebraska City and other points along the river.
