T. H. Pollock Is Honored By Valley Group

T. H. Pollock, chairman of the Plattsmouth Harbor and Dock Board and for many years a supporter of the Mississippi Valley Association recently was honored with a life membership in the association at its annual convention in St. Louis.

The "Mississippi Valley News Letter," which carried a full account of the convention, said life memberships were awarded to several members, among them, T. H. Pollock as a "pioneer and consistent supporter of water resource development."

Mr. Pollock until two years ago had been a regular attendant at association conventions. This year the convalesced attracted more than 1,300 persons from 30 states and the District of Columbia.

Association President March told the assembly: "We have acquired a great obligation in becoming the leading entity in promoting the conservation, development and proper use of the precious water resources of the midcontinent area. We reflect the combined vice of many businessmen in a large and important segment of our country."

"Local groups could not possibly accomplish by themselves what has been done by combining with other areas throughout the Mississippi Valley into a cohesive force."

Chief of army engineers Maj. Gen. E. C. Itchner said: "The Mississippi Valley is approaching a new era of opportunity as industry and population move westward into the heart of the Valley. To take advantage of this opportunity the Valley's water resources must be conserved and put to economic use."

The commissioner indicated construction should be completed this spring on a federal aid project road north of Nehawka.

Norris broke a long silence when he defended his district's actions of last fall when a new motor patrol was purchased.

He said in view of the fact one maintainer had broken down, it was the only sensible thing to do, using the old grader as a down payment and paying the balance in monthly installments.

Norris said with that accomplished, his district is now ready to begin the heavy spring road program with good equipment.

He also qualified purchase of the patrol by saying when the new one was bought he was anticipating the need of opening drifted roads. He felt people who are now bound appreciate but little the fact a grader may be out of service.

The commissioner handed out a pat on the back for County Surveyor William Coakley. Norris said "we are fortunate in having Bill Coakley as our surveyor. He is getting a lot done and is a good man for the county."

Norris also said his district had been handed a compliment by State Auditor Ray Johnson on a recent visit. Norris said Johnson congratulated him on the job being done in the district.

Norris admitted the job of running a district isn't easy, but he urged constituents with recommendations to talk them over with him.

Junior Class Presents Play Friday Night

The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. Friday on the comedy drama "Rest Assured," which is to be presented in the high school auditorium by the junior class.

Under the direction of Dale Gleason the cast features Larry Cole and Betty Smiley in the leading roles of Mr. and Mrs. Morelock.

Tickets to the play are priced at 50 cents for general seating and 75 cents for reserved seats.

The plot revolves about Mr. Morelock, a fidgety, nervous old fellow who likes nothing but money and his refusal to allow his daughter to become engaged to Joe Lanconi because Joe's papa is poor.

Joe's Dad, Luigi, and Mr. Morelock engage in a feud which should end with the death of Luigi. It doesn't—because Luigi gains permission to return and haunt old Morelock.

Morelock blows up under the pressure, and he too, keels over dead. The play begins to move toward its startling climax as Morelock, dead as a two-weeks beached whale, sees his doctor making overtures of marriage to Mrs. Morelock.

The end? Well, for that, attend the play.

County Assessor Reminds Residents Of Filing Deadline

County Assessor Clara Olson today reminded county residents April 20 is deadline for filing personal property assessments without a penalty.

Miss Olson said the filing of assessment returns is moving at "an average pace." She said returns from precinct assessors are spotty in that each assessor waits until several have been collected before mailing them to her office.

The assessor estimated 300 applications of approximately 1,500 due in Plattsmouth have been filed with her office.

Cass Society Plans Drive For Museum

An estimated 1,000 letters to individuals and project clubs will be mailed by the Cass County Historical Society in launching a new fund drive to promote a county historical museum.

Society President Martin Sporer, Murray, told members at a regular meeting Wednesday: "We are on the threshold of a new drive for funds for the Cass County historical museum. It should be successful for interest in early history is statewide."

Important legislation now pending at Lincoln, if passed will be a great help to local groups endeavoring to collect and preserve the relics of early days.

Cass County, one of the state's earliest, was described as "rich in history." And the impending drive is an effort not only to promote the museum but to increase interest in the society.

Following the business end of the session, Mrs. Guy Wiles gave a talk on early settlers, including her great grandfather who came to Nebraska in 1855.

She also gave information on locations of early day schools, churches, homes, bridges, mills and trails.

Lions To Hear Of Atom Blast

A report on the effects of an atomic blast will be given by an eye-witness to members of the Plattsmouth Lions Club at their meeting in the Lions Community Club Building March 26.

He is Walter D. Behlen, president of the Behlen Manufacturing Company, Columbus, who will show color pictures which he made on the scene along with his report.

The event is one of wide appeal to the members of the community, and the club is holding guest night as an opportunity for others to hear the report. Each Lions Club member may bring a guest to the meeting. It was explained by Fred J. Feldhausen, president. Hugh Stander is program chairman.

The dinner meeting begins at 6:30 and Behlen is expected to speak about 7:30.

Behlen, a Columbus manufacturer of metal products and buildings, was one of a group of observers who saw the blast in the Atomic Energy Commission-Civil Defense test, "Operation Cue," at Yucca Flat, Nev. The observers were at Media Hill, about 8 miles from ground zero at the time of the blast.

One Behlen building was located 6,800 feet from ground zero, and although damaged, survived the blast and was officially credited with providing good protection from the elements. The building later was returned to Nebraska and now is on view to visitors on Highway 30 at the Behlen plant. The second building was at 15,000 feet and suffered but minor damage.

The presentation which Behlen makes is believed to be one of the very few programs of this test which has been made available to the public. He has been called upon to give it scores of times in cities across the nation, including Kansas City, Des Moines, Omaha, Santa Monica and others, as well as in communities in Nebraska.

Overheated Stove Causes Small Fire

This morning the fire department was called to North 10th and Ave. G on an alarm that the residence occupied by the Ralph Aldrich family was a fire. When Chief Joe Kruntorad and his fire fighters arrived on the scene, it was found that an overheated stove had caused the alarm. The stove pipe from the stove was too close to the left and charred some of them. The danger was soon under control and the loss held to $25 to the building.
