Short Courses On Irrigation, Stock Raising

LINCOLN—Persons attending two short course sessions at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture this winter will hear about irrigation and livestock production.

The first session will be held Nov. 18 to Dec. 18. The second session will run from Jan. 6 through Jan. 31.

Irrigation water management and management of irrigated soils will be the courses taught at the first session. The second session will deal with range and pasture management and beef cattle feeding.

Instructors for the courses will include specialists from the college of agriculture faculty as well as successful persons in the applied fields of farming and other agricultural enterprises.

Enrollment for each session will be limited to 30 persons. Applications will be approved in the order received. Send applications to Dr. Franklin E. Eldridge, associate director of resident instruction, 206 Agriculture Hall, College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

The first three of twelve promised West German divisions joined the North Atlantic Treaty forces. Two armored divisions are being trained for the end of the year.

Nation's bankers expect a strong second half year.

The Air Force announced it was abandoning the Navaho supersonic, intercontinental guided missile, for economy reasons. It was estimated that in eleven years, $500,000,000 has been spent on the missile, but in two test firings, it fell short of hopes.

Second best half-year is reported for steel output.
