We Must Follow Our Own Principles, Not Act as Others

THE motives that strengthen family life are the motives that strengthen personal and social life. Family relationships, because of their intimacy, are more conducive to good and true motives when they have the uppermost place. A person feels the urge to do and be his best when he has the right attitude toward the home and family.
 A profound danger for many of us today is that we shall allow our motives and conduct to be determined by what others are doing. Or by what others are failing to do.
 In a time when people are called on to make some sacrifices and when a mild self-discipline is demanded from us all, there is danger we may resent others. When we see those who display no spirit of sacrifice, we may resent the fact that they have more or have it "easier" than we.
 The motorist who drives a low-price car may be aroused by the fact that his neighbor, whose situation is somewhat the same, can afford a more expensive make. He may be tempted to say, "Why shouldn't I have the same?"
 The one who is scrimping and saving while others make large salaries may easily become dissatisfied with his situation.
 These are minor illustrations of temptations toward something other than our best. They could be on a large scale.
 In the presence of such temptations to let our conduct be influenced by the actions of others. It is a good time to remember the words of Joshua, successor of Moses, who was leading a disgruntled people away from the bondage of Egypt. The Israelites were discontented and almost up to return to the fleshpots of Egypt. Joshua left the decision, up to them, but he said:
 "As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

"THEY'RE CATCHING ON, BUT THEY CAN'T CATCH UP." That's how lots of people feel about the "new 1958" cars that are trying to match the Dodge Swept-Wing look. These other cars have been lowered some, but still seem high and boxy by comparison. A few are "catching on" to fins, but they're years from

"catching up." And the air suspension offered by some cars (at well over $100 extra) can't compare with the sway-free, dip-free ride of Dodge Torsion-Air (standard equipment on all models). So on your way home from someone else's new car showing, stop in and compare it with Swept-Wing '58 by Dodge. You'll see what we mean.

See Swept Wing '58 by Dodge at R. V. Bryant Motor Co, 125 No. 5th
