Mills County Votes For New Court House

Tuesday the voters of Mills county, Iowa approved the proposal to replace the century old structure at Glenwood with a new county building.

The vote for a new court house carried 1,569 to 815, more than the sixty per cent majority required.

The proposal was defeated at two previous elections.

Plans call for a $350,000 structure, with most of the financing to come from a $205,000 bond issue.

This Screen 'Vamp' Shouldn't Be June Allyson But Is

June Allyson had to travel almost halfway around the world to accomplish it, but for the first time in her career as a screen star she's playing "the other woman."

Across the Atlantic in Germany, June had the novel experience of trying to lure Rossano Brazzi away from his movie wife, Marianne Cook, in Universal's "Interlude," which comes Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Nov. 24-25-26 to the Cass Theater.

Miss Allyson and Brazzi are starred in the Technicolor-CinemaScope love-drama produced entirely in Europe by Ross Hunter.

Says June: "I felt like a little girl who had run away from home."

Film fans who fell in love with Miss Allyson's wifely charm in dozens of movie roles may be vastly surprised when they behold their favorite star in "Interlude." Never before have they seen her in torrid love scenes like the ones in which she steals the affection of handsome Mr. Brazzi.

In "Interlude" Miss Allyson portrays an American employee of Amerika Haus in Munich, who falls helplessly in love with a celebrated European symphony conductor. Although the man is married, June carries on a romance with him that seems to eclipse all of her past "affairs" on the screen.

"Interlude" was directed by Douglas Sirk. Miss Cook, Françoise Rosay and Keith Andes are co-starred and the notable cast includes Frances Bergen and Jane Wyatt.—Adv.

SO? IT'S COMFORTABLE—While the modern "slat" chair may be an object for derision in many traditional homes, four-year-old Robin Klempuss of New York finds it's mighty handy for a siesta in Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic. Robin's position shows that youngsters can be as free-form as any chair.

an "executive session" to talk about the matter and invite Faquet to sit in.

Begley said he didn't know what the public would think of that.

Faquet later said he would rather not sit in on such a session and would advise his clients not to sit in.

Bornemeier said at one point he thought that "Things like this wouldn't happen if the county had adequate road help." He suggested the Commission seriously consider hiring a county engineer. Most Nebraska counties have engineers, he said.

Bornemeier said the job of commission member is a trying one because of the lack of engineering help. He suggested hiring an engineer and equipping him with mobile communications equipment to better handle the many road problems which arise in the county. He said there are more than 800 miles of county roads in Cass County and "the job is getting too big for us."

Damage claims which started the wheels of legal procedure rolling were following:

The Omaha Power Company for a 3-pole power line setting with two anchors on the Richard Cole farm; moving of the line and erection of a new setting is an exacting job, the company said, requiring skilled workmen. However, since the resulting setting would be new and the maintenance on it lower the claim was being made for $549 although the cost would be "in excess of $600."

The Vinduska claim of $200 would be chiefly for moving of fence line and construction of some new fence. This claim would not be necessary if the road were opened at 40 foot width as is the case with the three-eighths of a mile already open to the Richard Cole homestead site, Vinduska said.

Faquet said at the outset of the hearing that the road "should have been opened many years ago" but wasn't for "some obscure reason." He said the Commission was asked to open the road in 1946 and material for a bridge was moved to the present bridge site.

However, Faquet said, wet weather caused postponement of construction the Commission decided the bridge was needed elsewhere and the project shelved. He said though there was no formal agreement to construct the bridge and road it was evident the need was recognized.

Bornemeier said no minutes were kept of those Commission proceedings but that he heard there had been no petition, only a verbal request "which was denied and the bridge material ordered removed."

The three-eighths mile of road adjacent to the section line in question was opened in 1953 and Richard Cole stood the expense of moving trees and fence. Cass county stood the grading expense.

At one point early in the hearing, Begley asked that County Surveyor William Coakley's report be read. Coakley had been instructed as part of the procedure to survey the section line.

Coakley recommended that the road, if opened, have 66 feet of right-of-way.

Nolte said he thought 40 feet would be adequate. Norris then questioned previous statements during past commentary on the road by Nolte to the effect that the road ought to be opened in order to complete a leg of a direct road from Greenwood to U.S. 75. Norris said that if it is to be considered a major road, 66 feet at least would be required.

A final question raised by Bornemeier and left unanswered was "Who pays for the bridge

if we don't open the road?" To this the county attorney replied, "Let's cross that bridge when we come to it."

Bornemeier said "I think we're pretty close to that bridge right now."

the job ahead."

The mail Sale campaign is voluntary fund-raising in its truest sense, Mr. Serafy went on to explain, because the individual receives his Christmas Seals with a letter asking that he buy and use them on his mail. Thus the Christmas Seal Sale provides an opportunity for each citizen to decide privately upon the merits of the TB association and its value to the community.

"The millions of contributors, increasing each campaign year, proves that the public is a willing giver with strong support for the tuberculosis cause. All who make a contribution have voiced an interest in and vote of confidence for the program of the TB Association," he said.

The TB Association's board of directors can determine budget, policy, and program. This makes it possible to have flexible organizations which can conduct programs of maximum benefit to the community, depending upon the changing needs for TB control.

Christmas Seals have been mailed to some 360,000 homes in Nebraska, Mr. Serafy concluded. "The funds raised begin the second century of our campaign to eradicate one of mankind's oldest enemies — Tuberculosis!"

In Cass County, the volunteer organization mailed out 3,005 envelopes of Seals. They contained self-addressed envelopes for return of contributions to the Cass County Seal Chairman, in care of the Post Office here.

It is hoped that within the next year a program of skin testing for tuberculosis can be put into effect in the schools in the county, a member of the county Seal organization said.

--Senator

Sen. Curtis said a system of checks and balances is needed to restrain the power of union officials and give control to the workers.

The Minden veteran of 19 years in Congress (16 as representative from the first Nebraska congressional district) declared his faith in the "rank and file" of union members. "They're just like you and I," he said, "interested in advancing their own lot and their families, honest and sincere."

The racketeering and hoodlumism uncovered in the committee's investigations of the Teamsters, Textile Workers and Bakers unions is not a reflection on the 60 million laborers in the nation, he said. The "hoods" in the labor unions are a minority, the corrupted union in the minority, he said.

Investigations are expected to continue through 1958, Sen. Curtis said. He said that 90 to 95 percent of letters the committee has received asking for investigations have been from union members.

The senator described some of the committee's activity to date. He told about the Teamsters Union investigation and methods Dave Beck, former Teamsters boss used in misappropriating funds. Beck used bogus organizations to get his and his family's hands into the union's pocket many times, the senator said.

Sen. Curtis warned against belief in the fallacy that the investigations and exposing of racketeers has solved the problem. The conditions which produced those racketeers must be changed by legislation, he said, and expressed confidence some such legislation will be forthcoming.

Sen. Curtis was introduced by Richard P. Rokay, Plattsmouth President Lester Dalton presided at the meeting.

Entertainment was by two groups of Plattsmouth High students, a vocal quartet of Jane Faquet soprano; Janet Campbell, alto; Jim Morris, tenor, and Dan Wehrlein, bass; and a clarinet quartet of Carolyn Vinduska, Ken Price, Joyce Buechler and Patty Smock.
