

McMillan's Proposal

Prime Minister Harold McMillan has advanced the cause of peace by proposing that a non-aggression pact be signed by democracies and Moscow.

In this instance, however, we think London has the right idea and Washington should follow close.

Many Americans have opposed both proposals on the ground that we cannot possibly win in any negotiations with the Reds and — concerning the non-aggression pact — that such a pact would amount to nothing.

On the other hand, what valid objection will stand up in the eyes of the people of other countries in the world to signing a pact of non-aggression?

We know we are not going to invade any country or commit aggression against the Communist world.

If they do — and have signed a non-aggression pact — they will lose much of the value and benefits they have derived from their world peace propaganda.

Moving the Capitol

Senator Olin Johnston (D-S. C.) has suggested that the national capitol be moved from Washington D. C. to a new location in the Middle West.

The danger confronting Johnston and many others is the possibility of a Soviet nuclear attack on the United States.

While we do not think it would be possible to move the capitol, neither do we think this would safeguard our capitol.

iously the government considers the threat from the Soviet Union.

It may be possible, as Johnston suggests, that the strategic agencies of Washington, could be dispersed so that one attack will not knock out most of the vital agencies in the Federal Government.

Johnston believes Washington is not only susceptible to aerial attack, but is also within range of attack by Soviet submarines.

We have long urged that Congress take some action to accomplish a dispersal of key government agencies, and also of vital defense industries.

We think the government's vital agencies should be dispersed and that defense industry in this country should be not only dispersed, but located in underground facilities.

CPPD Construction Budget For 1958 Set at $5,826,540

COLUMBUS—A $5,826,540 construction budget for 1958 was approved here by Consumers Public Power District's Board of Directors.

R. L. Schacht, CPPD General Manager, pointed out to the board that the budget's construction money includes $2,143,000 for work on local electric distribution systems; $1,866,040 for power transmission lines; $326,365 for revamping rural lines and for the building or improvements of sub-stations.

The budget estimates the 1958 income at $17,549,823. President Mark T. Moore of Kearney, told the board that these figures covered all operations, both in the Eastern System (the Eastern two-thirds of the state outside of Omaha) and the Western System (the Ogallala-Scottsbluff-Chadron area).

Both officials "previewed" the '58 financial picture by calling special attention to the following highlights:

Total operating expenses, including construction, are pegged at $13,800,541; this covers $7,160,000 for the purchase or production of electricity.

Another $2,678,520 has been provided for debt service such as payments of principal and interest on bonds and funds for reserves to make future bond payments.

Approximately $320,000 for "in lieu of taxes" payments. This includes money to be held in escrow while Lincoln's occupation tax is tested in the courts.

The big item of buying or producing power is expected to be up $365,345 or a 5.59 per cent increase in the Eastern System. CPPD buys nearly all of its power in the Eastern System from the Nebraska Public Power System. It is estimated that the purchased power will cost CPPD 8.25 mills per kilowatt hour. The cost was slightly more than 8 mills per KWH in 1957.

CPPD is producing all of its power in the Western System, mostly from steam plants at Ogallala and Scottsbluff. Power production costs in the Western System are expected to drop about $4,000.

The over-all net revenue for 1958 is estimated at $3,121,171 (after such operating and maintenance expenses as production, transmission and distribution of electric power, payments in lieu of taxes, administrative, etc.). The expected net revenue is estimated to drop $222,306 or 7.02 per cent in the Eastern System and $23,783 or 5.29 per cent in the Western System.

In discussing the financial and construction programs, CPPD officials and the board again brought out that Nebraska law requires Consumers to offer local distribution systems to the cities and communities, debt-free, in 1972. Those local distribution systems are maintained, built or improved only thru CPPD's net revenue, not through borrowings.

Other highlights of Schacht's overall budget report to the board:

CPPD's average number of customers for '57 was about 117,900.

Total kilowatt sales throughout the 71 counties in which Consumers operates hit 819,300,000.

Consumers has made provisions for moving or rebuilding power lines to coincide with the stepped up state and county road building program.

The board was informed that some of the larger construction jobs over the state would include all or part of the following:

Work on the 34,500-KV line in the Abilene-Cedar Rapids area; a major project on a 34,500-KV line between Norfolk and Pierce; rebuild the 34,500-KV line between Plymouth Junction and Des Moines; the Elm Creek-Odessa, Fairmont-Geneva, Platte-Center-Monroe, Neligh-Clearwater transmission lines are also in the budget for major revamping or rebuilding.

Mr. Schacht also informed the board that plans are being studied about the feasibility of a 115,000-KV line for bolstering the transmission grid in the Western System. Scottsbluff and Kearney's local distribution systems are on the planning boards for a revamping to improve the voltage and economical operations.
