On Losing U. S. Planes

Another U. S. Air Force aircraft has been shot down by the Communists. The latest incident occurred in Korea, very close to the demilitarized zone which divides South Korea and North Korea.

However, the American aircraft shot down, an F-86 Sabrejet, was shot down by anti-craft - which would indicate that it was going astray. Another Sabrejet was almost shot down by the enemy anti-aircraft fire.

U. S. aircraft are involved in too many "incidents" with Communist defenses. The Communists are certainly to blame for shooting down our aircraft, such as their barbarism of August, 1956, when sixteen Americans died in a Navy patrol plane shot down by the Chinese Communists.

However, our planes are not always where they should be, and this is the cause of some of the trouble. No doubt the Communists, as well as our own air force, are constantly seeking reconnaissance photographs and reconnaissance information from "across the border."

On training flights, however, there is little excuse for us violating Communist territory. When our aircraft are shot down by enemy anti-aircraft fire, it is obvious that they are trespassing somewhat, or at least taking an unnecessary chance, since Communist anti-aircraft guns cannot operate anywhere except on Communist terri-

While we regret to see U. S. airmen killed, because they fly on or too near Communist territory, that does not excuse Communist brutality in the killing of these airmen. But that is a barbarism with which we are quite familiar, and ample allowance for this ruthlessness should be made when training missions are involved.

We have no quarrel with Air Force officers if they wish to take a calculated risk for Intelligence or reconnaissance purposes. On training flights, however, it would seem that more caution should be observed, or more protection afforded. When our planes are shot down by enemy fighters, we have suggested that they be defended, and that they carry their own fighter escort. When they are shot down by ground fire, however the conclusion is almost inescapable that they were flying too close to Communist guns, on Communist territory.
