

Here's How ACS Dollar Is Spent

"These days we are asking the citizens of Cass County to support the 1958 Cancer Crusade. We believe they would like to know that sixty cents out of every dollar they give will stay right here in our state to be used for regional cancer control programs."

This statement was made by Mrs. Arle Rakosa, local crusade chairman of the cancer campaign, who today released a breakdown of the American Cancer Society's current budget. The ACS drive, which began April 12, has set its sights on $30,000,000.

When you ask people for money to support the work of a voluntary agency, they have the right to know exactly how every dollar will be spent. Of course, the Society's books are audited and made public annually. She is proud of the way the cancer dollar is used, and believes this efficient breakdown is impressive.

"Since sixty per cent of the money we raise will remain with the Nebraska Division of the American Cancer Society for state and local cancer control programs, that leaves forty per cent for the national use of the Society.

"Twenty-five per cent is allocated for nation-wide research projects of more than a thousand top scientists in some 127 institutions. Twelve per cent covers professional and public education, service, administration and fund raising. And three per cent provides medical grants, and fellowships for advanced training in cancer diagnosis and treatment, more than 1,000 fellowships grants have been awarded under this program since it was launched in 1948.

"It will be seen that not a cent of the dollars collected for the fight against cancer is wasted. The fight is gaining momentum. More talent, time and money are going into the basic research program of the Cancer Society than ever before. Newspapers, magazines, radio and television are publicizing more and more of our life-saving information. More volunteers are dedicated to the Cancer Crusade. And more lives are being saved: for one in three cancer patients is now saved as against one in four a short time ago.

"It is obvious that this intensive and cooperative effort must ultimately bring cancer under control—as other diseases have been controlled. The more people enlist in the war against cancer, the more dollars contributed to pay for that war, the sooner the victory—against the number two killer in the United States today."

Farmer: Don't Shun Acre Duty

Chairman Ivan G. Althouse of the Cass Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee today urged local farmers to be careful about their responsibilities under the acreage reserve of the Soil Bank during the coming crop season if they want to get the full benefit of that program.

In a planting season reminder to farmers, Althouse pointed out that the signer of an acreage reserve agreement has undertaken a binding commitment to hold his reserve tract out of production during the 1958 growing season.

"It will be too bad," the chairman said, "if the farmer goes into the acreage reserve conscientiously and means to comply but fails to keep informed about requirements and deadlines and loses his payment through carelessness."

With regard to the acreage reserve tract (land on the farm diverted from allotment crops to the reserve), Althouse cited 3 main requirements as follows:

1. Planting. No crop may be planted on the acreage reserve before Jan. 1, 1959, except that with the approval of the state committee certain crops may be planted in the fall of 1958 for harvest in 1959 or later, where that is the normal practice.

2. Grazing. The acreage reserve may not be grazed before Jan. 1, 1959, except under certain emergency conditions and with a reduction of the farmer's payment. Leasing of the land to others for grazing purposes is prohibited.

3. Harvesting. No crop may be harvested from the acreage reserve during the calendar year, 1958.

In addition to observing these requirements on land placed in the acreage reserve, Althouse said, the farmer must comply with any other acreage allotments on his farm and must keep within the farm's total permitted acreage.

The permitted acreage is the Soil Bank base—two-year average of grain and row crops—less land placed in the Soil Bank. By willfully failing to comply with his acreage reserve agreement, Althouse said, a farmer will lose his payment, and may, under certain circumstances, be subject to a civil penalty equal to 50 per cent of the payment he would otherwise have earned.

* Corn price supports for 1958 have been set at a minimum national average of $1.36 per bushel, Ivan G. Althouse, chairman, County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announced today.

This is an "advance of planting" minimum support reflecting 77 per cent of the April corn parity price, and based on a corn supply estimated at 4,751 million bushels—126.7 per cent of normal.

The loan rate for Cass County will be announced before harvest. According to the chairman, compliance with acreage allotments will be a condition of eligibility for price support in commercial corn-producing counties.

In counties outside the commercial area, which do not have corn acreage allotments, the corn support rates by law are set at 75 per cent of the "commercial" rates.

Althouse said the minimum support price of $1.36 will not be reduced, but may be increased if a combination of the corn parity price as of Oct. 1, 1958, and corn supply relationships as of that date indicate a higher support price.
