Fight on Heart Disease

Dr. Mario Stefini, Director of Medical Research at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boston, has come up with what might be a major advance in the battle against heart disease. It was revealed only a few days ago that a mold which grows on bread has yielded an extract which can hunt and destroy blood clots.

The mold is said to be able to find blood clots anywhere in the human body within minutes, and work wonders on dissolving them. The Massachusetts Heart Association reported the discovery, and, while no immediate mass benefits are expected, the announcement may be significant as the first news of a new development which will eventually curb heart disease.

Dr. Stefini has been doing intensive research work under an American Heart Association grant for ten years now. He admits that his discovery is still in the preliminary stages of development, although the mold has been used with "excellent results" on twenty-five patients.

The mold was used on animals in a long period of experimentation before it was tried on human beings. It is thought to be so effective that it can be used almost immediately on patients suffering from the shock of a massive heart attack, or cerebral strokes.

However, initial information indicates that the mold would have to be used before long-term damage has resulted from blood clots, which would be rather soon after the incident.

This is heartening news in the fight against heart disease. Perhaps the fight against heart disease, and strokes, plus the battle we are waging with cancer, are the most vivid of the health battles now being waged. Of course, mental disease claims more victims than any other disease, and progress is being made in this field also. Until now, however, very little has been known about heart disease, or cancer, and any advance in the program to curb the ravages of these two diseases is especially heartening.

Know and Be Yourself

The essence of education is to "know yourself" and the sine qua non of social cooperation is to "be yourself."

The individual who attempts to attain these goals is fairly certain to be a worthwhile citizen of any community. To know one's self is to understand human nature and to be sincere and unaffected in a modern society which requires unusual character.

To young boys and girls of Cass County, interested in the problems of life, we suggest serious consideration of these goals. They are also worthy of the attention of older persons, especially those who are under the impression that they have arrived somewhere in the search for whatever they seek in life.

There are not enough people who can disagree and smile about it.

Down Memory Lane

20 YEARS AGO

Mayor George Lushinsky was installed for his third term as mayor and proceeded to make a decided change in the police force of the city. W. M. Barclay was named as chief, David Pickrel as assistant chief and Herbert W. Johnson as the night police. L. W. Niel and E. G. Ofe were named as members of the cemetery board. John J. Cloidt, George Conis and Elmer Sundstrum as park board. Dr. L. S. Pucek city physician, J. Howard Davis, city attorney. Ivan Taylor, street foreman — George W. Kline of Lincoln filed application with the state engineer for authority to establish the Ak-Sar-Ben public power and irrigation district of South Bend, Nebr. The main dam of the proposed district would be constructed in the Platte river between South Bend and Louisville. The district would serve Cass and Sarpy counties — George E. Stites of Union, elevator operator, started for Clay Center with a load of corn just as a shower came up, at Eagle he found the rain very heavy, in Saline county ran into a real cloudburst. The residents there were very happy with the rain as it has been very dry there for the past few months — Twenty-six young men and women of Cass county are to participate in the Farmers Fair at the University of Nebraska including Louis Knoflick, James Wall, Dick Spangler, Milford Smith, Roy Rockenbach, Wayne Domingo, Louis Clymer, Weldon Switzer, Bob Pollard, Boyd Mayfield, William James, Wayne Bornemeier, Marjorie Zink, Mina Jean Young, Dors Hall, Merle Eveland, Alberta Timmas, Ruth Ann Sheldon, Edith Schomacher, Frances Rehmeier, Dorothy Leesley, Lucille Backemayer, Loretta Ruge, Mary Belle Kuhn, Lois Giles and Willene Fager.
