Rotary Votes for Rec Area; Student Talks on Mexico

Development of a public recreation area is a vitally-needed community service project, the Plattsmouth Rotary Club has decided.
Recently a list of 15 proposed projects were given club members for vote on the three each member considered most worthy of club sponsorship.

The recreation area was first by a wide majority, Steve Davis, club member who conducted the vote, reported Tuesday noon. Two thirds of the members listed this as first choice.
A Dutch Elm Disease control program ranked second and development of a scenic drive to the game-refuge recreation area on the Missouri River bottom was third choice in the voting.
Davis said poll results will be turned over to the club board of directors.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the club had a look at Mexico City from a student's view. Speaker was Barney Elting, student home from the School of International Relations at Mexico City College.
He said unity of the western hemisphere is vital in counteracting Communism and improved understanding between the United States and Mexico and Latin America are important to western unity.
Elting said every American when he leaves his country to go anywhere, including to Mexico, should become a "good-will ambassador" and try to understand the people and cultures of the places he visits.

He said he thought much of the misunderstanding many Americans have about Mexicans stems from lack of knowledge. He said the "tourist's view" of Mexico is "one-sided" and one has to live with the people to understand them.
Elting was introduced by his father, B. H. G. Elting, Rotarian who was program chairman for the day.
L. A. Caldwell, vice president, presided at the meeting. President Lester Dalton is still a hospital patient with a serious head injury incurred Memorial Day, but is improving.
