Liquor Revenue

Revenue from the tax on liquor is running ahead of the first six months of 1957.

The State Liquor Commission says the six-month total this year is $1.5 million, compared with $1.4 million for the same time in 1957.

Chadron Repairs
About $207,000 worth of repairs at Chadron State Teachers College has been given the approval of Gov. Victor Anderson.

Funds, from the state's institutional building fund levy, will be used to remodel the heating plant, and electrical and water distribution systems.

The governor also will look over bids on the work when they are received.

Interstate Speculation
State Engineer L. N. Ress says if "land grabbers" are at work in Nebraska along the Interstate Highway he isn't aware of it.

Robert Armstrong, of the Nebraska Citizens Council, a taxpayer group, said in a speech at St. Louis that speculators are attempting to move in on the Nebraska Interstate.

Armstrong also said there is "political jockeying" on placing of connections to the Interstate. Ress said there isn't any of that either in Nebraska and won't be as far as he is concerned.

The engineer is a member of the powerful design committee of the National Association of State Highway Officials. That is the group that makes recommendations to Congress on design of the Interstate Highway.

Armstrong spoke at a Middle States Taxpayers Conference. He said one of the most difficult problems in Nebraska is acquiring right-of-way at "reasonable" prices.

Ress said he anticipated trouble in getting right-of-way when Nebraska got into building the Interstate Highway because it takes a minimum of the width of a football field for the route. "People just don't like to sell their land," he added.

The research director for the Citizens Council, meanwhile, Leonard Bronder, discussed the subject of Nebraska's approach to mental health problems, also at St. Louis.

The key to Nebraska's approach, Bronder noted, is training psychiatrists—which are in short supply nationwide.

Right now there are 24 trainees at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute in Omaha. At the end of three years resident training, they will serve at least two years in one of the state's mental hospitals or clinics.

Bronder said in the last three years the number of patients in the state mental hospitals dropped from 4,781 to 4,391. He commented that Nebraska was a leader last year nationally with a 5.4 per cent reduction in mental patients hospitalized. The national cut was 3.9 per cent.

Also, the state was a leader in the field of first admissions to institutions, with a drop of 14.6 per cent, compared with 3.9 per cent nationally.

Bronder said the more money spent now by governments in mental health work will save tax dollars in years ahead.

Gasoline Collections Up

There has been a whopping increase in collections of the seven-cents-per-gallon tax on gasoline in Nebraska.

The State Division of Motor Fuels reports collections since Jan. 1 totaled $1.7 million, compared to $14.6 million for the same period in 1957.

Reason for the boost is a change from a six to seven cent tax, the division explained.
