Fine Historical Display Of Dresses Shown At Karnival

Among the attractive showing of historical objects during the King Korn Karnival was that of Mrs. Virgil Perry in one of the windows at Soennichsen's. This was a selection of dresses and hats being worn by Mrs. Perry's grandmother, Mrs. J. M. Patterson and her mother, Mrs. T. H. Follock. Some of these dated back into the fifties and are well preserved, shows the styles that prevailed in those years before the civil war and immediately following the war. These have been wonderfully cared for and deserved a place in a museum for future years.

Don York also has a fine showing of wood work that he has turned out in the past years that attracted a great deal of attention in the varied assortment of articles from Don's skillful hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lutz visited with Mrs. George Grant at the Clarkson hospital Tuesday evening.

Pie Pastime Proves Popular, Peachy, Pleasant

The art of getting rid of a piece of pie in a third of a minute more or less gave Karnivalgoers a lot of enjoyment on Kids Day.

There were enough entrants in the pie-eating contests to run the competition over schedule.

Several "beats" of youngsters tried their luck at the "peachy" pastime with berry pie. All seemed to enjoy the pie and were troubled little by their facial condition at the end.

Contestants had to hold their hands behind them and eat bending over a table.

Charles McClanahan was returned as the mightiest muncher, downing his triangle of pie in 19 seconds.

He was half a swallow ahead of Donald Riley who chomped in in 20 seconds flat.

Joey Pleasance was third in 29 seconds.

Produce Show Winners Listed

Following is a list of "honorable mention" winners in the Karnival Fruit, Vegetable and Canned Goods show at Farley Furniture:

Small tomato cherries, Mrs. J. S. Toman; cabbage, Mrs. Toman; canned goods, Mrs. Fred Hill; green peppers, Sharon Davis, Luella Meisinger; red peppers, Karyl Davis.

Cucumbers, Jim Wurga; squash, Mrs. Hill, Dennis Hill; white squash, Mrs. Robert Campbell, Rodney Hill.

Creed Harris At King Korn Karnival

Among the attendants at the King Korn Karnival Saturday was C. F. Harris, of Union, Cass county's grand old man, now nearing his 93rd birthday. Mr. Harris came to Nebraska from Virginia in 1884 where nineteen years of age, has made his home here since that time. He was a prominent farmer near Union for many years and still has his interests there. He was for several terms county commissioner from the second district and on leaving for his district and co-showing for his district and county.

Creed has been making his home here with a son, Fulton Harris, for the past few months but expects to return to Union when his son, Sterling Harris returns to the family home.

The carnival this year had an added interest for Mr. Harris in the fact that the queen Miss Susan Stone of Weeping Water, is a granddaughter.
