Don Glaze Finds German Life Most Interesting

Don Glaze, McCook, Nebr., young man son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Glaze, former Plattsmouth residents, is now home from a sojourn overseas in Germany where he was an exchange student at the University of Cologne, one of the best known educational institutions in that country.

Don, a graduate of the McCook High School, entered the George Williams College in Chicago, while there was attracted to the fact that many exchange students from overseas visited the Chicago college. This college trains young men as physical educators and YMCA secretaries.

The fact that he had no foreign language study in his high school work, bothered Don a great deal, but he was assured by the Chicago faculty that he could soon acquire the foreign language, and through the efforts of Dr. Steinhaus, a member of the faculty, he was sent with three fellow students to Cologne to study.

Armed with a German-American dictionary the party set forth and found that necessity was a great teacher in learning a language.

At Cologne his roommate was Herman Gall, a German student majoring in English but whose knowledge of English did not permit very pleasing conversation with the young Nebraskan. Soon they were able to make out with a mixed English and German conversation.

Don had the pleasure of visiting in German homes and spent the Christmas holidays in 1957 in visiting in two German homes. One that of a lawyer gave an insight into much of the social life, including a Christmas ball.

The dance was largely waltzing with a few rock'roll numbers. Another was a visit with the family of his roommate, where he was received by the Gall family as a son and treated that way by all of the family. Later he was a most welcome guest at weekends with Galls and learned much of the intimate life of a German family, sharing with them the small household tasks.

He was able to enjoy holiday trips to Holland, Austria, France Belgium and Italy.

Be Sure You've Enuf Postage on Overseas Mail

Postmaster Gen. Arthur E. Summerfield cautioned today that international exchange of letters report a marked daily increase in the number of surface and airmail letters, addressed to other countries, bearing insufficient postage.

Postal employees are being advised to return to senders "short-paid" international letters.

Recent changes increased the international surface and airmail letter rates to Canada and Mexico only, and these rates are now the same as the first-class and airmail rates for domestic mail within the United States—that is, 4 cents for the ordinary surface letter and 7 cents for an airmail letter weighing up to an ounce. However, in many cases, senders apparently are still using the old rate to Canada and Mexico. For example, many "short-paid" letters for Canada and Mexico carry only 3 cents postage.

Letter rates to countries other than Canada and Mexico remain unchanged, except that the rate for the second and additional weight units for surface letters is increased from four to five cents.

For example, a surface letter to London still costs 8 cents for the first ounce, but 5 cents (instead of 4 cents) for all ounces.

In addition to the appeal for public cooperation, all postmasters and other officials are being directed to order a period of strict surveillance to prevent the acceptance of short paid letters for other countries to prevent the inconvenience to mailers of returned letters.
